THE CHANTICLEER

Volume One of the Chanticleer, a handsome leatherbound edition of 232 pages, was published in 1912. The origin of the Chanticleer, the cock, as a name and symbol for the annual remains shrouded in mystery, though there is some evidence to suggest that the proud bantam was borrowed from Chaucer's "The Nun's Priest's Tale." The graduating class that published the first yearbook was 63 strong: 22 women and 41 men. The book was dedicated to Bishop John C. Kilgo, who at that time had been President of Trinity College for 17 years. The Chanticleer's first editor was Claude Bennett. The format of the first annual was surprisingly modern, and over the years the feature sections have undergone few changes. When the Chanticleer received direct support from the University, advertising was eliminated. The 1956 publication was the last to include an ads section. The yearbook's golden anniversary this year accounts for the use of yellow as a secondary color. The Chanticleer has been revived and up-dated, and stands as a fit herald of a grand tradition and an exciting future. It is with pleasure that the cock of old presents the volume that marks his fiftieth birthday.

PROGRESS · 1962 ·

A FEELING of activity and rejuvenation has been in Duke's tobacco-scented air for several years, as thoughts and ideas have gradually emerged as tangible plans. Then progress suddenly became visible: ground was broken and buildings began to rise, brick on brick. Khaki-clad workmen were as numerous as khaki-clad undergraduates, and the noise of cement-mixers droned above the unmistakable sound of "Student Studying." Announced changes in policy affected both students and faculty, and new trends accompanied the freshness of attitude and outlook. "Progress" was the keynote of it all, a transition, a second generation for Duke University—and it is only a beginning.

In the life of any institution a complete changeover must periodically occur, when the outdated and useless give way to the modern and vigorous. The past year witnessed the birth of a new era for our comparatively young school; few facets of university life escaped examination and evaluation.

Last fall, the campus populace returned to find Myrtle Drive still faithfully linking the worlds of East and West, but in other respects the physical plant had been expanded and improved. A $2,000,000 Law School Building was under construction, the new Biological Sciences Building was nearing completion, and the Woman's College Infirmary was preparing for occupancy. An addition to the Medical Center had been constructed during the summer, and the Presyterian Student Center was almost finished. Connecting Duke and Erwin Roads was a new roadway, built to alleviate any traffic problems which might arise in connection with the new law building and the proposed units for married graduate students. One of the cafeterias on West Campus had been redecorated, emerging as the attractive University Room, and Aycock House was painted and refurbished.

If some plans had been realized, others were yet to be fulfilled. A $4,500,000 addition to the main library and a new Fine Arts Building will eventually grace the campuses. This is the largest building program undertaken by the University since West Campus opened thirty-two years ago.

Tiled walls brighten a zoology lab in the new Biology Building.

The Biological Sciences Building is prepared for spring semester occupancy.

The massive addition to Duke Hospital in its temporary steel cage.

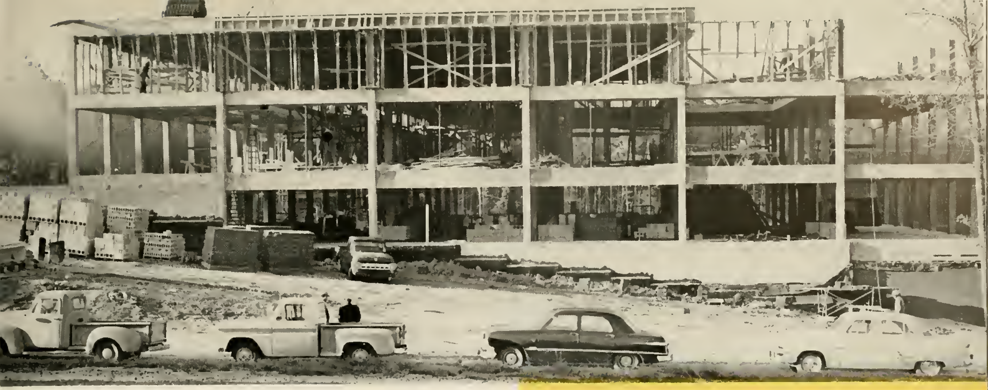
The impressive new University Room—a West Campus dining hall, well disguised.

A long, wide stretch of asphalt now connects Duke University and Erwin Roads.

The massive physical changes, however, are only one phase of Duke in Transition. Other things have been, are being, and will be altered and improved in order to enhance Duke's standing among American universities. A gift from the Duke Endowment promises the needed increase in salaries which will enable the University to attract and hold a distinguished faculty. With financial assistance from the Mary Biddle Duke Foundation, Doris Duke, and others, fourteen new distinguished professorships have been established.

Other changes made by the administration have received wide publicity. The first Negroes to enter Duke enrolled this fall in the schools of Divinity and Law, as a result of last year's decision to integrate the graduate colleges. IBM entrenched itself as an unseen ally in the eternal battle for courses, and, for the first time, freshman registration and course card writing was completed in one day. The corps of campus law-enforcers—the invigorated, swift-footed, sharp-eyed Security Force—was enlarged and modernized.

The present enrollment at Duke has responded to the challenge of growth. Dynamic movements originating in the student body have culminated in the achievement of far-reaching goals. The success and import of student-motivated campaigns depend greatly on the character and capacity of the students involved, and Duke may take pride in the ever-rising caliber of its undergraduates. Each incoming freshman class rises a rung above its predecessor on the intelligence ladder. The class of '65 boasted fifteenth place nationally in the number of Merit Scholars enrolled. On both East and West, many of the trivial freshman duties were discarded, with the hope of incorporating this class more quickly into the flow of student life.



Construction advances gradually on the expansive Law School Building.

The Experimental Dorms, proposed last year, became a reality on East and on West. Special housing was provided for those students who were selected for the trial. These dorms were intended to give their members the opportunity of living in a more exclusively intellectual atmosphere, and of sharing in the development of mutual cultural interests.

On West Campus, fraternity pre-rush regulations were relaxed to allow "open relations" between fraternity men and freshmen. Moreover, Formal Rush was held during the semester break, as a solution to the problem of 4 A.M. nights running into first-period classes the next morning. East Seniors became a distinguished group when a list of Senior Privileges materialized this year. Seniors were allowed midnight permission during the week, and assumed responsibility for special leaves.

Perhaps the most revolutionary event of the past year was the revision of the drinking rule. Agitation began last year, and by mid-fall of '61 the Administration had approved the change. The rule was passed by a campus-wide vote, and a troublesome regulation died overnight. Consumption of alcoholic beverages at off-campus functions became legal.

In an age of symbolism, the revamped University Seal, officially adopted this year, may be said to represent the forward-looking attitude of Duke and the vast expansion of its physical plant. The motto is still "Eruditio et Religio" but its context is different. The new seal speaks for a transition which affects those who are presently experiencing or directing the changes, and which will affect, in time, the alumni, the future classes, and the name and reputation of the University. It is with this realization of the broad impact that change brings now and later that the 1962 Chanticleer is dedicated to the Idea of Progress.

CAMPUS LIFE

CAMPUS life is the sum of experiences of the Duke Student. It signifies the routine, the unusual, the tedious, the exciting—it is the story of one day, one week, one semester, repeated over the four-year span of a college career. It is a way of life that can never be duplicated, a life spent in a unique environment and among friends chosen from within a predetermined radius. A Duke student's responsibilities are peculiar to a university existence; the hours in his day and night will never again be filled as they are during these four years. Within this time personalities are developed and fashioned; careers are decided and launched; interests are awakened and explored. It is not one phase alone—studies, social life, or extra-curriculars—that creates the overall impression of college; it is instead the total of these, the intermingling of all in one vast memory of Campus Life.

MORNING . . . Life wouldn't be so bad if it didn't mean getting up in the morning. But every day starts that way, the campus gradually awakens: alarms ring, and ring, and ring . . . pillows thud on roommates—or wet washcloths—or the radiator comes on with a clanking—or the soothing cackle of the "Country Boy" wafts through the speaker of the clock radio. Somehow, the Duke student eventually starts another day—or at least starts thinking about it. Through bleary eyes, he glances out of the small-paned Gothic window to check the weather—drippy, natch. There's incentive for you. Big masculine feet, little feminine feet padding groggily up and down dormitory halls, in and out of closets . . . no one really knows how the day does begin . . . can't see, can't think, can't maneuver. Breakfast, the first saving grace: sad cold eggs stare mournfully, the healing waters of a coffee cup, ornch juice to freshen that foul taste . . . and the first cigarette of the day (really should stop smoking) . . . the jarring rattle of Union china . . . and the day's first decision: which newspaper? Wonder what Jack Horner has to say, and Ann Landers . . . nice to know they haven't dropped the bomb . . . yet. Each day differs, but the first hour is always the same— predictably miserable, foggy, blank . . . unless you stay in bed, that's best of all. "Smile now, you might not feel like it later on" . . . Off to classes . . . a snore bellows from the last row—catnaps, pencil-pushing, unshaven faces, all kinds of profs—drags, inspirers, jokers, scholars. Between classes, it's the Dope Shop for a Pepsi or coffee and doughnuts . . . a quick glance at the contemporary card rack . . . still the same . . . visit the P.O. to discover another bill—rats, they found me. A battle up the stairs when the rest of the campus is pouring down them. . . . Then fight for a ride to the other campus—ladies first, you Southern gent—or play mash-em on the bus. Things come into focus now . . . maybe it won't be such a bad day after all. But there's that hour test . . . a chance to pull the plug and let the knowledge pour forth—or drip pitifully . . . 50 minutes to show that you've done the reading, or to bluff and hide the fact that you haven't . . . The thrill of writing a good exam, the despair of failure . . . it's all in a morning's work.

Wading from classes . . .

Sunday noon exodus.

Study breaks find students actively engaged in heated discussions.

NOON . . . Umbrellas hastily open as a mid-day shower suddenly drenches the campus—why can't we have just one nice day? . . . but the monsoon season drags on, and on, and on. Stand in line for lunch—spend half your life standing in line . . . maybe they'll serve something I like for a change—fat chance—well, I'll be, a new way to serve hanburger, or is it mystery meat? Prepare for afternoon classes and labs—should have done it last night. Saturday noon, when the early birds make it to the Stadium to watch the Devils in pre-game warm-ups, to save seats for Bill and Sue, Bob and Jean, Jerry and DeeDee . . . why couldn't they get here themselves? No rain today . . . unbelieveable. Med-students eating, chatting, studying on the Hospital steps . . . golf bags being dusted just going to hit some off the tee . . . or off to P.E. . . . speedball, volleyball, tennis, wrestling, what won't they think up next? BEAUTIES

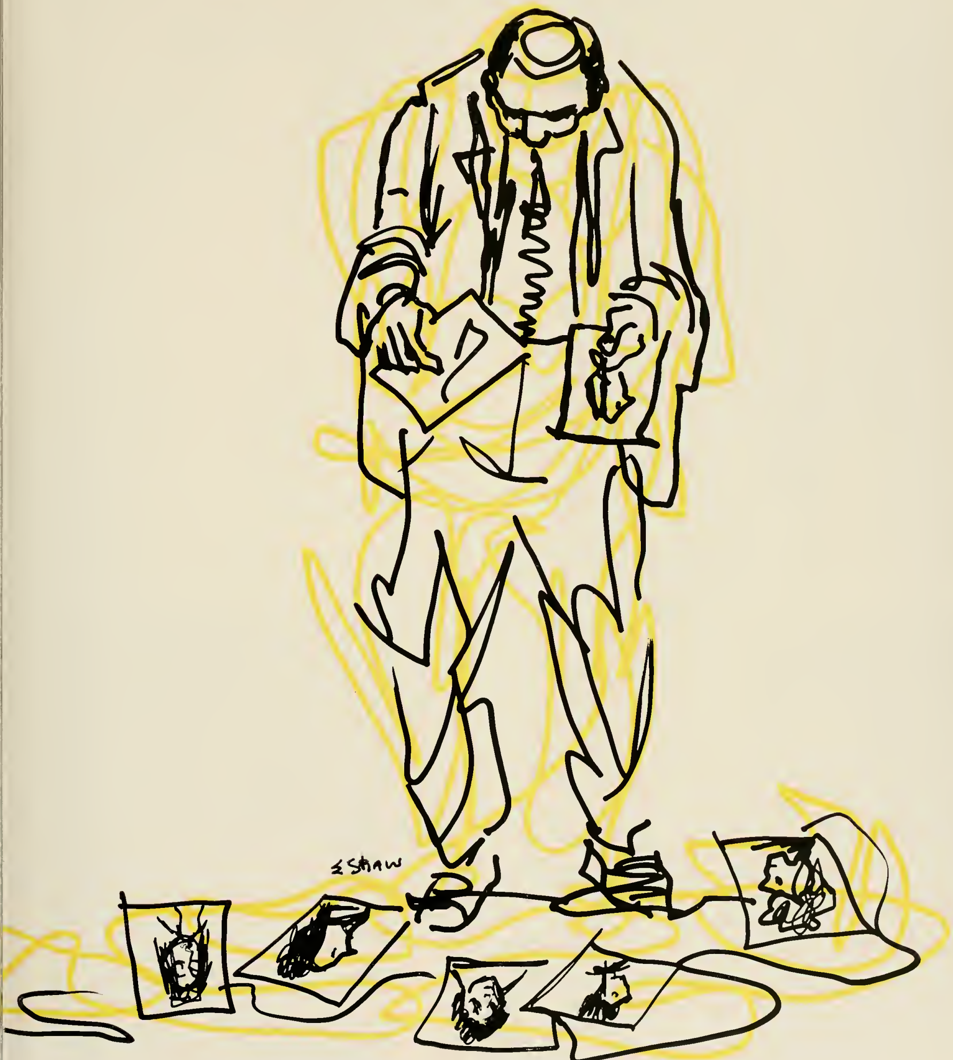
If a thing of beauty is a joy forever, a yearbook can help preserve the qualities that constitute this precious abstract. The following pages are filled with the portraits of Duke co-eds who have been recognized as campus beauties. Whether labeled as beauteous, or cute, or attractive, or glamorous, each one is noticed, admired, or envied as an individual. They speak with accents which place them as southern, northern, or midwestern, and represent the charms associated with various parts of the country. Personality and popularity are necessarily considered in a campus poll—a realization which makes a beauty crown an even more meaningful honor. The Chanticleer is proud to present these lovelies—the cream of Duke women—not only intelligent, fun-loving and friendly, but each and every one a beauty in her own right.



E SHAW

Mr. Hugh M. Hefner, Editor and Publisher of Playboy magazine, selected the 1962 CHANTICLEER Beauty Queen.

CHANTICLEER QUEEN

Chosen last year as the Nurses' Beauty Queen, Miss Betsy Woodhall now bears the title of the CHANTICLEER Queen. This is the third appearance in the beauty court for this lovely Durham belle. Selected from a group of nine girls from East and Hanes, Betsy was crowned on November 10 at the annual Co-ed Ball.

A former resident of East Campus, Betsy is now a junior in the School of Nursing. She enjoys French literature, doubtless an influence of her days as a French major in the Woman's College. Other favorite pastimes include horseback riding and keeping in contact with her sorority, Kappa Kappa Gamma. After graduation, Betsy would like to apply her nurse's training in a private surgical clinic.

Betsy is crowned by CHANTICLEER Business Manager Jerry Butler.

Surprise!

BETSY WOODHALL

DELIA CHAMBERLIN

This year's Homecoming Queen and last year's CHANTICLEER Queen, this Kappa Alpha Theta girl is a senior from Memphis, Tennessee. Delia is majoring in French, and is a resident of Southgate.

BETSY CRAWFORD

A senior Hanes girl, Betsy makes her permanent home in Sylva, North Carolina. She is a music and dancing enthusiast, and enjoys tennis, bowling and horseback riding. Betsy also appeared in this year's Homecoming Court.

JANICE DUFF

Jan hails from Wenham, Massachusetts, and is a junior this year. Her academic major is art history; a second love is listening to classical music. Jan is a resident of Pegram House.

JULIA HARTMAN

This is the second appearance in the Beauty Court for this Bassett sophomore from Hartford City, Indiana. Julie is studying German, and is a Kappa Kappa Gamma. An avid swimmer, she life-guards during the summer.

IRENE LILLY

A senior from Indianapolis, Indiana, Renie is majoring in history and plans to teach. She was a Rush Advisor this year, and appeared in the Homecoming Court representing Pegram. Her sorority—Pi Beta Phi.

CAROL ROGERS

A sophomore from Hanes House, Carol makes her second appearance in the Beauty Court. The activities of this Haworth, New Jersey miss include being a cheerleader, an FAC, and a member of Student Union.

EMELIA SAINT-AMAND

The only freshman in the Beauty Court this year, Emelia makes Jarvis her campus home. She is from Gaffney, South Carolina and is a member of Alpha Delta Pi. She plans a major in elementary education.

LUCY TAYLOR

A Sandals member, Lucy served this year as President of the Sophomore Class. She is majoring in sociology and lives in Alspaugh House. A member of Kappa Delta sorority, Lucy is from Louisburg, North Carolina.

DELIA CHAMBERLIN
1961 Homecoming Queen

HOMECOMING QUEEN

Despite rain and a defeat by Clemson, Homecoming was nevertheless characterized by the high spirits of enthusiastic students and alumni, and by a variety of awards and honors. Skits, posters, parties, the Homecoming Dance, a pep rally, and a play constituted some of the activities of the whirlwind weekend.

At the Homecoming Show in the Indoor Stadium Friday night, Giles House placed first in the skit competition with its "Clemsonus Vulgarus Americanus," while Sigma Nu took top honors in the fraternity displays with "Back to Death Valley." House K edged the other freshman houses to win first with their display, and the KKG's won the sorority poster contest.

The highlight of the show was the crowning of the 1961 Homecoming Queen, Miss Delia Chamberlin, by Football Captain Jack Wilson. This was just a continuation of past history for lovely Delia who has been featured as the "Peeress" and was last year's Chanticleer Queen.

MAY QUEEN

The May Queen and her court are senior girls selected from representatives of each East Campus dormitory. The election is sponsored by Social Standards, and emphasizes not only beauty, but also service and contributions to the campus as qualifications. The May Queen, who is presented to the campus during the Joe College Parade, also represents Duke at the Azalea Festival in Wilmington. This year's Queen is Renie Lilly, a Pegram girl from Indianapolis.

NURSES' BEAUTY

Each year the Nurses' Beauty Queen is selected from candidates representing each class of the School of Nursing. The election is held in December, and the Queen and her court are presented at the Nurses' Christmas Ball. Carol Rogers, a sophomore from Haworth, New Jersey, received the honor this year. Carol also appears in the 1962 CHANTICLEER Beauty Court and is familiar to Duke sports fans as a cheerleader.

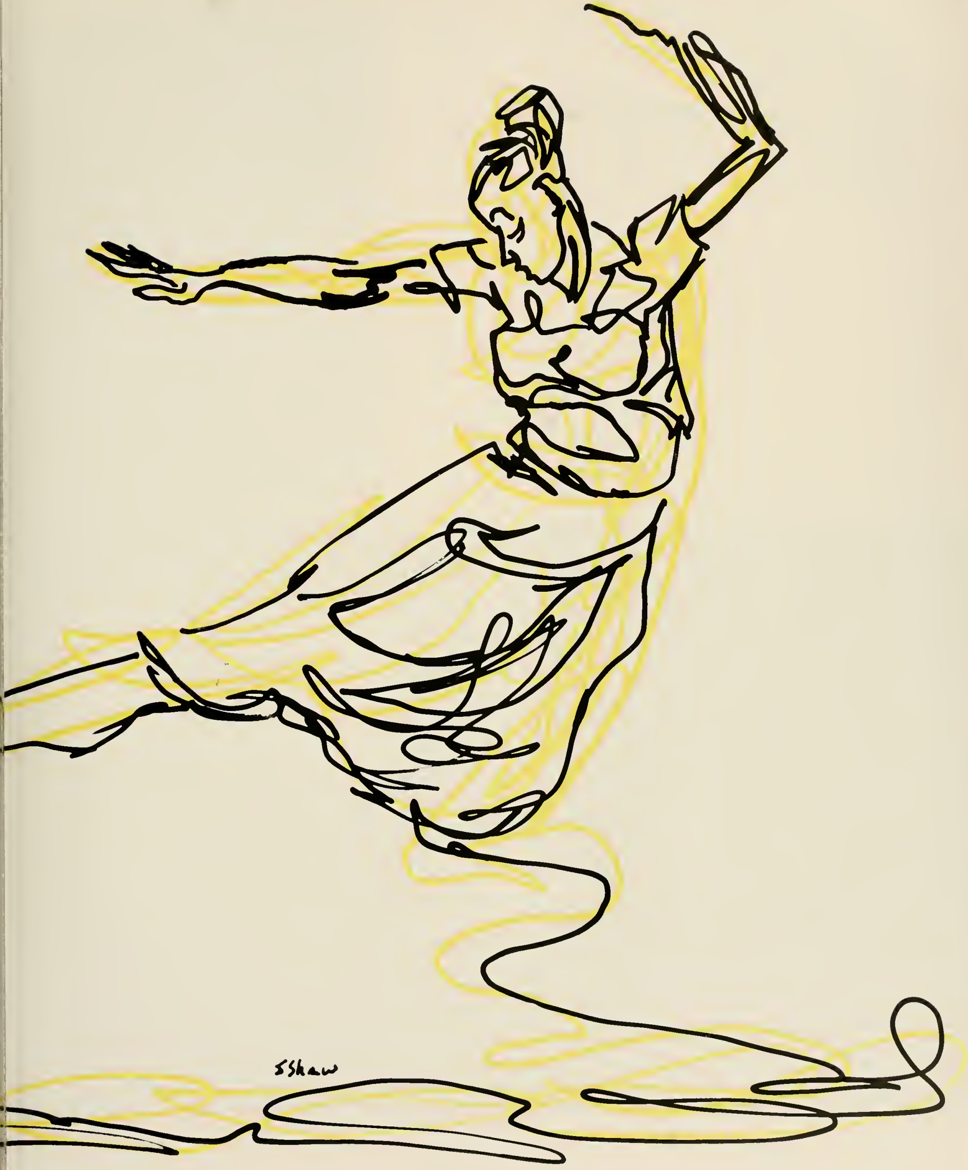
ORGANIZATIONS

IT would perhaps be an overstatement to say that there have been extra-curricular activities as long as there have been colleges and universities. And yet, students have always found time to explore and develop their avocations or hobbies, to make friends who share their interests and to exercise certain talents. The Duke campus houses organizations and clubs of every conceivable description and purpose, for those interested in government, in religious, cultural, or political discussion, in student publications, in sailing, in music, and so on down an endless list. Rare is the student, and a dull Jack he would be, who is not involved in at least one activity; for student organizations are an educational, as well as a recreational and social experience. Whatever the activity in which he participates, the student is part of a private undertaking, sharing the responsibility for the success or failure of the endeavor, and developing as a person and citizen.



S Shaw

MEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

In order to facilitate its aim of providing effective student government, the Men's Student Government Association has made numerous improvements in its internal workings. In the fall, the need to fill the Senate vice-presidential vacancy led to a clarification of the constitution, which had, in the past, called for a special election to fill a vacancy occurring during the first semester. A new precedent was set by stipulating that each candidate in such an election must submit the names of at least one hundred M.S.G.A. members as well as a ten dollar filing fee. The special election made Sam Ellis the new vice-president.

A plan specifying the method of initiating constitutional referendums was adopted. Under this provision, a petition that urges a proposed amendment must be signed by a hundred students, and have the approval of two-thirds of the Senate, in order for a campus-wide election to be called.

In addition, the senate adopted definitive criteria for the future chartering of campus organizations. The new procedure states that an organization must submit for M.S.G.A. approval a constitution, a statement of purpose, and a list of members. The organization will then be granted a one-year provisional charter, after which time the organization's program will be reviewed and, if approved, granted a permanent charter.

M.S.G.A. has, this year, proved itself more than effective in representing student opinion and negotiating student wishes for more responsibility. Besides supporting student arguments concerning such issues as administrative censorship, present traffic and parking regulations, and Allen Building's refusal to allow free cuts for President Kennedy's appearance at UNC, the student government succeeded in securing a revision of the off-campus drinking law, which now allows alcoholic beverages to be served at organized, off-campus social functions.

Keeping in mind its objective of improving life at the University, the Men's Student Government Association this year initiated a self-government program for freshmen under the new "Code of Responsible Living," and worked for the approval of an unlimited free cut system. M.S.G.A.'s presence was felt in all phases of campus activity.

WOMEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The Women's Student Government Association co-ordinates and governs the activities of the Woman's College. In addition, W.S.G.A. seeks to stimulate the free exchange of ideas among students in regard to campus, local, and national issues. Each student, as a member of the Association, has the right to present her ideas and express her opinions on these issues in the weekly meetings of the Council and in the monthly meetings of the entire student body.

W.S.G.A. was swept up this year in the tide of progressive thought and action which permeated the University Community. Through the joint efforts of M.S.G.A. and W.S.G.A., the off-campus drinking rule was relaxed and the responsibility of making the new rule work was given to the students. In another joint maneuver, M.S.G.A. and W.S.G.A. drew up the guidelines for a Student-Faculty-Administration Committee. By the end of the year, this Committee had become a reality and the student problems and student-faculty communications were being channeled through this Council.

The W.S.G.A. Council sponsored student delegates to the NSA National Convention, the State Student Legislature, and the Regional UN General

Assembly. W.S.G.A. also conducted a spring Leadership Training Program to encourage student participation in campus affairs. The Council also fostered a Course Evaluation Committee to examine such problems as voluntary class attendance, the honors program, and the Freshmen Course Advisory system.

The central organ of the Association is the W.S.G.A. Council, composed of W.S.G.A. officers, class representatives, House presidents, and chairmen of the W.S.G.A. auxiliaries. The Council acts as the executive and legislative branch of the Association. Judicial powers rest in the Judicial Board, while the House Presidents' Board and the House Vice-Presidents' Board co-ordinate W.S.G.A. and dorm activities. Sandals, Social Standards, Freshmen Advisory Council, National Student Association, Co-ordinate Board, Foreign Student Committee, and the Campus Chest are all auxiliary committees of the Council.

The Council has attempted to attract the student body to its deliberations and undertakings. Through the W.S.G.A. newsletter, the Chronicle, and campus and dorm discussions, the student body was kept abreast of the problems and progress of the Council.

"Is there a quorum in the house."

Nancy Bond, President

The Nurses' Executive Board co-ordinates and supervises the activities of the Nurses' Student Government Association. It seeks to develop individual responsibility through the Honor Code and to assure the enforcement of the Association Constitution. The Board is composed of the officers of N.S.G.A., the Chairmen of N.S.G.A. committees, and the president of the freshman class. This year, its activities included a complete revision of the Constitution and preliminary measures toward a campus-wide organization including M.S.G.A. and W.S.G.A. The Board also divided the duties of the vice-president of N.S.G.A. and the Judicial Board Chairmen.

The social calendar of the Council was filled with student-faculty coffees, held in the Hanes House parlor, the Christmas Dance, and the presentation of the Nurses' Beauty Queen. The Executive Board completed the year with an evaluation retreat.

ENGINEER'S STUDENT COUNCIL

The Engineer's Student Council serves as an essential link between the Administration and the student engineer. Formed to represent the students in their relationships with the public and the faculty, the Council adopted its constitution in March of 1953. The chief governing body of engineering students also works to unite the activities of all student organizations within the College. The Council's seats are occupied by engineering class presidents, professional society representatives, four elected officers, and two members-at-large.

President Bill McCutchen has led the E.S.C. in such projects as redecorating and maintaining a student lounge and establishing a Student Long Range Planning Committee for the College of Engineering. Programs were held to aid freshmen in selecting a major. The Council also sponsored the annual Engineer's Show.

Bill McCutchen, President.

MEN'S JUDICIAL BOARD

Roy Bostock, Chairman

The Judicial Board, instituted nine years ago as the official judicial branch of the M.S.G.A., convenes weekly. The Board acts as a court in hearing cases referred to it by the Dean's office which involve misdemeanors of West Campus students. While the Board is primarily devoted to deciding on disciplinary measures, it also guides, not merely punishes, those who appear before it. The Board interprets the M.S.G.A. Constitution and is the final judicial authority on campus. All decisions, however, are subject to administrative review.

The Judicial Board frequently consults freshman house presidents, IFC and IDC officers, and representatives of the administration in deciding a case. Trial procedure calls for closed sessions and allows the defendant to present witnesses in his defense. The tribunal is composed of nine junior or senior men appointed by the M.S.G.A. President and approved by the Senate.

WOMEN'S JUDICIAL BOARD

The desire of the Woman's College Judicial Board is that each co-ed, in her growth as an individual, incorporate an understanding of the basis on which East's regulations were instituted the basis of personal honor, self-responsibility, and co-operation. This idea has been strengthened by granting more privileges and by stressing the Code of Campus Living. The Code has meant that, as it is a student's responsibilty to uphold the standards of her school, it is likewise her duty to report to the Judicial Board when she is guilty of some violation.

The Board is composed of one representative from each East Campus dormitory. The chairman and the secretary are elected by vote of the student body. The twelve members of the Board serve as a Board of Appeals for cases which arise in House Judicial Committees and the Traffic Court. Each Judicial Representative presides over the judicial proceedings in her own dormitory.

NURSES' JUDICIAL BOARD

When the Nurses' Student Government was formulated in 1942, the Judicial Board was included as a part of that organization's general structure. The Board convenes weekly to try any infractions of the rules legislated by the SGA. The twelve-member body is also co-ordinated with the Nurses' Social Standards Committee, and it tries cases referred to its own docket by that group. While both the Honor Council and Social Standards Committee have immediate jurisdiction, the Judicial Board is the ultimate authority. On a broader scale, the Judicial Board is responsibile for supervising, in a sense, all phases of student conduct, especially those matters which concern the welfare of Hanes House girls.

The Board Chairman is the Vice-President of N.S.G.A. The other members of the judicial body are the Chairman of the Honor Council, the Chairman of Nurses' Social Standards, the Recording Secretary of SGA, the vice-presidents of each class, and an additional representative from each of the four undergraduate levels.

NURSES' HONOR COUNCIL

The Nurses' Honor Council provides the basis for the student government and life in the Nursing School. The purpose of the Council is to assist co-eds in maintaining high standards of conduct under the honor system. Because of its great success, nurses have enjoyed many privileges which otherwise would not have been granted.

The Council is composed of a chairman elected by the school at large, three members of each class, three faculty representatives, and the President and Recording Secretary of N.S.G.A. The duty of this group is to try all breaches of the Honor Code, and the decisions of the Council are final.

Each year, the members of the incoming class become a part of this system by signing, in front of the whole student body, a pledge of their support. This formal ceremony attempts to instill in the new student nurses a concern for integrity and loyalty, the foundation for both the responsibilities and privileges of an honor system.

MEN'S FAC

The Freshman Advisory Council, a committee of the YMCA, has, since 1957, customarily returned to Duke a week prior to the first day of classes, with the expressed purpose of advising and aiding in the orientation of a newly arrived crew of confused and bewildered freshmen. Making each new student feel welcome and wanted, the "Y" men lend assistance in everything from gripping freshmen luggage to slipping the young innocents tips on a preferred prof. In addition, the FAC's supervise freshmen placement tests and physical examinations.

The seventy-two men who served on the committee this year were chosen from a host of applicants last spring. In looking back on their first hectic semester, the Class of 1965 will doubtless gratefully remember the many kindnesses shown them by the "white-shirted army," which acted as both advisor and friend.

Anne Strickland, Chairman

WOMEN'S FAC

The members of the Women's Freshmen Advisory Council are selected each spring from the rising junior and senior classes. The student advisors are chosen on the basis of their understanding, responsibility, and leadership.

Each FAC is assigned to a group of five to eight freshmen girls. She introduces "her girls" to the Duke way of life, acquainting the freshmen with the Code of Campus Living, the academic program, the campus, the Durham community, and the extracurricular organizations which invite freshmen participation.

Under Chairman Anne Strickland, the FAC's underwent an extensive training program in the spring and again in the fall to insure the success of Orientation Week. Stressing an intellectual approach to college life and prepared with general aids to campus adjustment, the FAC's remained available, throughout the school year, to advise freshmen.

NURSES' FAC

During Orientation Week, freshmen nurses are introduced to Duke by members of the Nurses' Freshmen Advisory Council. The Council is composed of fifteen rising sophomores who act as friends and advisors of the freshmen throughout their first year.

The Council was formed in 1954 to assure freshmen of a more efficient adjustment to the campus and to nursing ideals. Patterned after the FAC groups of Trinity and the Woman's College, the Council replaced the N.S.G.A. orientation program, which had failed to foster the desired relationships between freshmen and upperclassmen.

The Council's activities begin with the careful scheduling of events for Orientation Week. These preparations culminate with the arrival of the new class. Large orientation classes and smaller discussion groups are conducted to acquaint the girls with the regulations and customs of the Nursing School. The Council members also sponsor tours and parties, and assist with class elections and the N.S.G.A. Rules Test.

Sue Scheiderbauer, Chairman

Lee Sammons, Chairman

ENGINEER'S GUIDANCE COUNCIL

Through the efforts of the Engineer's Guidance Council, the newly-arrived engineering student is encouraged to meet the challenges confronting him; to face the demands of his required courses and, at the same time, to swim, without being drowned, in the constant stream of extra-curricular activities. As part of its program, the Council sponsors tutoring sessions in physics before each hour examination in that department. Assistance is also available in other basic engineering courses—calculus, geometry, and mechanical drawing.

Only five years old, the accomplishments and influence of the Council have steadily increased. Keeping personal contact with freshmen throughout the year, the forty-five man group was headed this year by Lee Sammons and Don Dettmering. The Council's members are chosen after spring interviews and are selected on the basis of maturity, dependability, and academic performance.

The purpose of the National Student Association is to learn and employ the ways of strengthening student governments, of stimulating student interest in national affairs, and of dealing with domestic and foreign issues which affect students on U.S. campuses. Slicing through traditional barriers—social, political, racial and religious—the NSA attempts to be a representative voice of American student opinion, seeking to further the ideal of a world-wide community of students, based on common problems, commitments, and goals.

On the international level, NSA provides inexpensive tours of Europe, Asia, Africa, and Latin America. Member schools profit from the exchange of ideas as well as from the chance to contribute to such organizations as the American Council on Education. A leadership course for student government candidates is but one benefit offered to the individual by the Association. The NSA is, finally, a link between campus organizations and the national headquarters in the co-ordination of opinions on such issues as the Peace Corps.

COURT OF APPEALS

The Court of Appeals, a governing and judicial body, convenes each Tuesday evening to hear and consider student violations. As suggested by its name, the Court enables students to appeal decisions pertaining to such violations as parking tickets or damage to University property. Since its inception five years ago, the Court's powers have been greatly expanded; it is a body through which students have assumed more responsibility and a greater voice in the regulation of campus life.

The jurisdiction of the Court covers all cases involving student traffic violations, students' liabilities for dormitory damage, and delinquency in the payment of Student Government Association fees. This year, the court was given the authority to handle cases involving "quad ball" violations and those related to the passing of "rubber" checks by students.

TRADITIONS BOARD

During Orientation Week, the Traditions Board acquaints male freshmen with the traditions which will aid them in their personal growth and which will affect their conduct as both students and alumni of Duke. The ultimate aim of the Board is to inform incoming students of the true purposes of the University and to help them realize the values of a college education.

The Board completes the greater part of its work during Orientation Week, when it distributes histories of Duke. At this time, freshmen are encouraged to write an essay on Duke traditions. The Board selects a winning paper and the prize essay is read during an assembly program, presided over by the Board.

Dick Vincent, Lloyd Griffith, and Tom Dawson.

CO-ORDINATE BOARD

The Co-ordinate Board, an auxiliary of WSGA, acts as a liaison between the administration-faculty and the student body, working to improve relations and to promote a greater understanding between these groups.

Utilizing its powers of suggestion and recommendation, the eighteen-member Co-ordinate Board, headed by Chairman Les Burton, sent letters of welcome to new professors, sponsored Pan-hel lectures on sororities for the co-ed frosh, and wrote letters to professors on suggested classroom policy. The Board also maintained an exam file in the East Campus library. One of its regular duties is to organize and execute the course registration system each semester. These and the many smaller "co-ordinating" services of the Board result in easier and smoother campus life.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

The foreign student program at Duke provides its members with an opportunity to exchange cultural ideas and to be absorbed in the stream of student life on an American campus. These goals are accomplished through the activities of the International Club. Special events this year included a costume ball, fair-weather outings, and several dinner-dances. Many of these programs were open to all Duke students. Closely co-ordinated with the International Club is the Foreign Student Committee of W.S.G.A. This committee organized two fund-raising projects, the proceeds of which went to the International Club and to the support of a foreign student on East.

K. M. S. Aziz, President

TOWN MEN'S CLUB

Some years ago, a group of public-spirited Durham citizens provided an on-campus meeting room for Duke day students. From this beginning, the Town Men's Club came into existence and has since expanded its influence and its range in campus life. Sponsoring socials and services, and imbued with a fraternal spirit, the club has sought to bring its twenty-six members into closer association with the activities and the athletic program of Duke.

Club meetings this year were presided over by President Robert Bland and were held Thursdays during fifth period. Included among the year's projects were a coat service for events held in Page Auditorium, active participation in the intramural program, and such club gatherings as dances and dinners, cook-outs and cabin parties. Growing and going farther than ever before, the club also worked on improving the appearance of its meeting room.

CAMPUS CHEST

This year the East and West Campus Chests combined forces to raise money for charitable organizations. The fall drive began with a Kick-Off Banquet on November 5 and culminated with a respectable percentage of each Chest's $3,000 goal being reached. The Chest accepted student pledges, which were collected in early February.

M.S.G.A. supervises the West Campus Chest and determines the amount each organization will receive. Among the organizations which received donations from the drive on West were CARE, Radio Free Europe, and MEDICO. On East, the supervision and distribution is accomplished by means of the Campus Chest Committee. Such groups as the Edgemont Community Center, the Foreign Student Fund, and the Alice M. Baldwin Memorial Scholarship were recipients of East funds.

SYMPOSIUM COMMITTEE

The Duke Symposium has become an educational event which challenges the University to a new awareness of world problems. The three-day program of lectures, forums, and informal seminars provides Duke students with the opportunity to hear outstanding speakers and to participate in a discussion of a topic of interest, chosen by the Committee.

Last March, the Committee presented "Power Structures—Context for Creativity," which sought to determine the effects that the complexity of modern living may have on the creative individual, especially in the fields of economics, education, and the arts. John Ciardi, Poetry Editor of the Saturday Review, Dr. Edward Shober, Professor of Education in Psychology, and Morehead Wright of the General Electric Company sat on the panel.

Arrangements for the Symposium are made by a committee of student and faculty representatives. During the year, this group conducts a symposium study program, and arranges interviews for prospective members.

Karl Ray, Chairman.

STUDENT UNION

The Student Union, a center of campus activities, was founded in 1955 to stimulate and co-ordinate student programs. Individual emphasis in various fields is entrusted to seven major committees, including Music and Arts, Social, Educational Affairs, Recreational, Major Attractions, Special Services, and Publicity. The policies of the Union are set by an eleven-member Board of Governors. The Board of Chairmen then executes these policies through their various committees.

The committees plan programs and sponsor such events as travel seminars, dance lessons, bridge tournaments, art and photography exhibits, and the Ride Bureau. The Union brought a variety of entertainment to the campus with concerts by the Weavers, Dave Brubeck, and Joan Baez. A Thurber Carnival was presented, and José Greco and his Spanish Dancers entertained in the spring. Patrick Dean and Robert Thompson spoke to Page audiences, and the Last Lecture series enjoyed a second successful year. Short courses were offered in ESP, and SU entered the field of improving student-faculty relations. Candlelight Cabarets and open houses rounded out the Union's social program.

Madeline Hartsell, Chairman

A special auxiliary of the Women's Student Government Association, Social Standards seeks to promote a pleasant atmosphere on campus by stressing accepted standards of good taste in dress, manners, and conduct. A twenty-three member body, Social Standards is composed of two representatives from each East Campus dormitory and three freshman women, who serve as representatives-at-large.

"Design for a Duchess" was mailed to incoming co-eds during the summer. The committee later published the Duke Pictorial Calendar, with its "dates to remember." Featuring the crowning of the CHANTICLEER beauty queen, the annual Co-ed Ball was sponsored in the fall. The W.S.G.A.-Sandals Banquet and three "Twilight Hours" concerts highlighted the winter social season. The committee's active social program drew to a close with the election of the May Queen and her court to reign during Joe College.

STANDARDS

NURSES

The Nurses' Social Standards Committee has been part of the Duke School of Nursing since the organization of N.S.G.A. Social Standards is presently composed of nine members—two representatives elected by each class and a chairman chosen by the entire student body of nurses. The Committee's purpose is to maintain certain accepted standards of conduct. The regulations of the Committee serve to foster the development of a social and professional code for the student nurses to uphold.

The activities of Social Standards this year included the sponsoring of a fall orientation program for freshmen and the sale of Social Standards Calendars in co-operation with the East Campus Social Standards Committee. In addition, the revision of present regulations was taken up in several monthly meetings. The reward of a Committee member is the success of a system founded upon precepts of honorable and ethical conduct.

Jane Stephens, Chairman

BOARD OF GOVERNORS John Artley, Dr. Pelham Wilder, Mike Roberson, Dr. Frederic Hollyday, Randy Carpenter, Clark Cahow, Jim Jones, Bob Hyatt.

YMCA

Randle Carpenter, President

Ninety per cent of the students on West Campus are members of the Young Men's Christian Association, which is proportionally the largest collegiate "Y" in the nation. The organization is governed by two principal bodies—the Board of Directors, made up of faculty members and the executive officers of the "Y", and the YMCA Cabinet, composed of the executive officers and the various committee chairmen. Most of the planning is done by the former group, while the latter committee puts the plans into action.

The YMCA, through its activities, reaches many facets of campus life. The organization publishes the Student Handbook and Directory, sponsors a freshman orientation program, sends seminar groups to New York to observe the United Nations and to study social problems in metropolitan areas, provides guides for visitors, and furnishes ushers for various campus functions. The "Y" also sponsors religious seminars and vesper services, works with underprivileged children and organizes the annual Dad's Day Weekend.

YWCA

The purpose of the Young Women's Christian Association is to help each student understand more fully the implications of her faith and act responsibly on the basis of this understanding. The "Y" also encourages its members to search for the qualities of knowledge, meaning, and action in education. This year, about 70% of East Campus joined the YWCA during its "Y Not?" campaign. Members of the sophomore, junior, and senior classes worked on study committees such as Human Relations, Campus Affairs, World Affairs, Religious Concern, and Social Action. A Freshman "Y" paralleled work in these areas.

The "Y" began its program Freshman Week, distributing meditation sheets and co-sponsoring a picnic. Later projects included Parent's Weekend, a Lenten booklet, the campus worship services, and a marriage seminar. The Freshman "Y" sponsored a Lost and Found Sale and a Current Events Newsletter. Weekly discussions arranged by each Dorm Fellowship leader promoted interest in personal, national, and universal problems.

BARBARA BENEDICT
Associate Director of Student Religious Life, East

ROBERT HYATT
Associate Director of Student Religious Life, West

The University Chapel, the focal point of Gothic West Campus, is also a concrete symbol of the University motto, "Eruditio et Religio." For just as the Chapel towers above the educational facilities which surround it, so life at Duke combines academic pursuits and religious purposes.

The Religious Life Staff is responsible for stimulating these pursuits and purposes. The Staff membership includes the Chaplain to the University, the Associate Directors of Religious Life, and the chaplains of the various denominational groups. Through non-denominational chapel services, study groups, and the activities of the denominational student centers, the Staff co-ordinates and stresses the religious phases of campus life.

Through the work of the Staff and the student groups, undergraduates are encouraged to understand and to share their spiritual experiences. The Inter-faith Varsity Fellowship, the Special Observances Committee, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes aid in emphasizing the religious approach, working through inter-racial and cultural exchange programs.

UNIVERSITY RELIGIOUS COUNCIL

The governing body of the various denominational groups at Duke, the University Religious Council stresses an inter-denominational program of religious services and spiritual experience. The Council's work is accomplished by committees and through the efforts of individual members. The Reverend Howard Wilkinson, University Chaplain, directs the Council, composed of students, the presidents and advisors of the student centers, and members of the faculty and administration.

A main concern of the Council is the Edgemont Community Center. Duke students and personnel are well-acquainted with the Edgemont children and attempt to further the valuable work done at the Center. The Council also sponsors a scholarship program, which enables Christians of foreign birth to study at Duke. Eminent theologians, philosophers, and artists appear on campus under the auspices of the Religious Council. Finally, the group publishes "Religious Life," a booklet which describes the activities and opportunities in the YWCA, YMCA, and other organizations.

Paul Hardin, Chairman.

CHAPEL CHOIR

Since 1932, the year in which the Duke Chapel was completed, the Chapel Choir has been the center of religious musical activity. Its main purpose is the presentation of well-wrought inspirational music as accompaniment to the Chapel Services of Worship. In addition to these Sunday morning programs, the Choir presented Handel's "The Messiah" as a traditional part of the University Christmas celebration. The program has become so popular that it is presented twice to accommodate the large audience. In the spring, the Choir again rehearsed a major oratorio; in commemoration of the Easter season, Mozart's "Requiem Mass" was presented.

Under the skilled guidance of Dr. Paul Young, the Choir has earned a sound reputation and has been widely acclaimed for its excellent performances. Composed of approximately two hundred voices drawn from the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, the Freshmen Choruses, and the University Graduate Schools, the Choir practices long hours each week to perfect the hymns for Chapel and to polish the major works.

John Harrelson, President.

The 160-voice choir fills the Duke Chapel each Sunday morning.

Established four years ago from a combination of the Women's Triple Trio and the Men's Double Quartet, the Chancel Singers are recognized for superior choral achievement on the Duke campus.

The organization enables its members to study and practice classical religious works on the level of chamber choral music. The group's membership is drawn from the finest voices in the Chapel Choir, the Men's Glee Club, and the Women's Glee Club. The Chancel Singers serves to enrich the members' knowledge and appreciation of this type of music and to increase the individual's ability to perform with accuracy and sensitivity. This year, the Chancel Singers presented a concert for the Duke-Durham community; the members also visited several nearby cities.

RELIGIOUS GROUPS

The various denominational student organizations at Duke aid in furthering the goals of the University by linking the activities of academic and religious life. Each group provides a community in which the student is challenged to broaden and strengthen his faith. The centers also provide a world of relaxation beyond that of normal social life. In addition to the religious services held there, the centers attract students to plays, sports events, and thought-provoking discussions. The groups also serve to bring students and faculty members together.

The denominational groups represented at Duke include those of the Lutheran, Society of Friends, Methodist, Presbyterian, Catholic, Episcopal, Unitarian, Jewish, Baptist, and Christian Science faiths. The activities of these groups are co-ordinated by the University Religious Council.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Comprised of approximately eighty voices, the Men's Glee Club celebrated its seventy-sixth anniversary in 1961-1962. The organization provides a diverse musical program for the campus and the community. The repertoire of the Club ranges from classical to Broadway selections, including operatic pieces, negro spirituals, and contemporary works of a semi-classical nature.

At the beginning of the fall semester, auditions are held and members are selected. The Club was led this year by President Ken Byrd and directed by "P.Y.," Dr. Paul Young. Dr. Young was assisted by Mr. William Waters.

The first concert was held during the fall, as the Club presented its annual Dads' Day Concert. In late autumn, the singers accompanied the football Blue Devils to Ann Arbor, Michigan, to perform with the University of Michigan Men's Glee Club. In March, the group went "ivy league" and teamed with the Yale University Glee Club for a concert in Page Auditorium. During the spring recess, the Club went on an extended Southern tour, performing before many audiences in Florida and the Carolinas.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

Appearing throughout the State of North Carolina as well as on campus, the Women's Glee Club, directed by Dr. Paul Young, presents both sacred and secular music. Organized in 1927, the Women's Glee Club has grown to a membership of some two hundred upperclass women. Although serving, in one sense, as a training ground for the Chapel Choir, the group has also established itself as an independent organization with an outstanding reputation of its own. At the beginning of each semester, try-outs are held and members are chosen from both East Campus and the School of Nursing.

The girls began the year by giving a concert with their West Campus counterpart, the Men's Glee Club. In November, the Club presented an afternoon program in the University Chapel. Spring meant the annual Glee Club tour of colleges and towns in North Carolina. The conclusion of the successful season was an East Campus concert featuring folk songs, spirituals, and sacred music.

CONCERT BAND

The program of the Duke University Concert Band is traditionally devoted to a variety of musical compositions, ranging from classical symphonies to renditions of popular and semi-classical favorites. Under the direction of Dr. Paul Bryan, the band established itself in the Sarah P. Duke Gardens for lawn concerts in the fall and spring, and performed in Page Auditorium to brighten the winter calendar. The Band members also participated in the Founder's Day ceremony and toured Virginia and North Carolina in March.

The Band was founded in 1923, and by 1930 had grown from twenty to seventy members. The membership has remained at seventy since that time. In recent years, stress has been placed on the quality of the music performed and on the educational experience of the student participants.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The 1961-62 season has seen the largest and best orchestra in the history of Duke. It also marks the fifteenth season that the Duke Symphony has been under the direction of Mr. Allan H. Bone. The personnel of the orchestra is drawn from the student body, the faculty, and other local people. Three concerts this year included works such as Brahms' First Symphony, Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto, and selections from Vittorio Giannini's opera The Taming of the Shrew, directed by the composer. Participation in the Orchestra offers one a live contact with music that he could otherwise know only through the long-playing record.

MARCHING BAND

Down the field they charge—in a burst of cannon smoke—the Duke Marching Band! Strutting at break-neck speed and at seemingly precarious angles, the DUMB is certainly one of the more energetic groups on campus.

Under the direction of Dr. Paul Bryan, the DUMB appears at all home football games and several away games each year. Led by President and Drum Major Bill Morgan, the band assembled several times weekly for drills and rehearsals.

Music is not the only contribution of the DUMB. The spirit-rallying members cheer enthusiastically in the stands as well.

Beatnik theme or Civil War epic, the band's shows usually parody various aspects of everyday life. Once again the DUMB created its share of the excitment of Duke football games.

DUKE AMBASSADORS

For thirty years, the Duke Ambassadors have entertained Duke students at dances, parties, and informal concerts; however, their popularity is not limited to the campus. Over the years, the Ambassadors have toured extensively throughout the Carolinas, and as far away as the Canal Zone, Bermuda, and Iceland. As ambassadors of goodwill for the United States Department of Defense, the group made foreign tours, foreshadowing the present-day Peace Corps.

The band, which has served as a stepping-stone for musicians to such big-name orchestras as those of Gene Krupa, Ray Anthony, and Glenn Miller, continued this year to provide the University with both high-quality jazz and fine dance music at Joe College, the Homecoming Show, and other events.

The general policies of student publications are subject to the approval of the Publications Board. This body is not concerned with censoring the student press and thereby putting an end to "academic freedom." Instead, the Pub Board is responsible for maintaining certain prescribed standards of journalism on "Pub Row," which houses the student publications. The Board also supervises commercial advertising in each publication.

Receiving frequent progress reports from the officers of the various student efforts, the Pub Board willingly assists in solving the inevitable problems which arise in the course of publication. Each spring, the Board elects the editors and business managers who will head the Archive, CHANTICLEER, Chronicle, Peer, and Playbill the following fall. The candidates for these postitions are requested to submit petitions and to be individually interviewed in helping the Board make its decisions.

Fifteen voting members of the Pub Board are chosen from the faculty, East and West campuses, the School of Nursing, and the College of Engineering. The editors and business managers of the student publications are ex-officio members.

THE ARCHIVE

The Archive was first published in the 1890's, when Duke University was still Trinity College. Since that time, it has adopted many formats with as many editorial policies. This year, under Editor Susan Matthews and her assistants, Jim Carpenter and Judy Gaddy, the Archive changed from its former tabloid size to a more compact magazine of 56 pages, published quarterly. The principal source of the magazine's material is still the undergraduates and faculty, and includes poetry, short stories, art work, and a broad range of essays and reviews.

The Archive encourages student creativity and publishes the highest quality of writing found on the Duke campus. This year, it sponsored a freshman literary contest in November; later, Duke graduate students discussed the best works in an open meeting attended by freshmen. In April, the Archive sponsored a reading as part of its fourth annual Festival of Literature. The celebration included readings by a prize-winning short story author from his own works, together with a panel discussion of poetry and prose submitted by University students.

PEER

In addition to a large-scale extra-curricular program—the "Booze Bowl," assorted mystical rites, and general "hell-raising"– Peer, much to the surprise of Editor Ron Seckinger, published five issues this year. This feat was in itself an improvement over the so-called entertainment magazine's past publication schedule. Other important changes and firsts under Taskmaster Seckinger included dropping "The" from the masthead and the inauguration of "incompatible" color, an innovation in the field of collegiate humor magazines. Yet with all the thunder and din, the Mouse reigns supreme in his hole on Pub Row!

Throughout its long and illustrious career, Peer has introduced its staff members, some of whom are on psychiatric leave, to its readers, who ought to be psychiatric leave, via the "Peeriscope." "Peering Around" summarizes the various and sundry doings of that miniature Mephistopholes, the Mouse himself. And each issue acquaints West Campus with the flowers of East by way of freshman beauties and the "Peeress."

In all earnestness, students are given a chance to express their creative abilities in the artwork, cartoons, photography, and articles, both serious and satiric, that make up a Peer issue.

PLAYBILL

The aim of Duke's youngest publication is to provide Page Auditorium audiences with critical reviews, program notes, and brief biographical sketches. Moreover, the Playbill consolidates the purchase and printing of programs for campus productions and presentations.

Covering such University attractions as Duke Players' productions, Hoof 'n' Horn shows, Glee Club concerts, and the Artists' Series, the staff injects originality into its programs by furnishing original reviews instead of relying on outside press commentary. With the hope of improving the magazine, each issue bears a unique and attractive cover and features a different arrangement of advertisements. Published fourteen times yearly, this Broadway-flavored program attempts to capture the mood of each performance.

In addition to its coverage of Page productions, the Playbill staff also publishes an IFC handbook for all West freshmen. This pamphlet is distributed just prior to Formal Rush and relates all the pertinent facts about the different Greek chapters represented at Duke.

THE 1962 CHANTICLEER

Jerry Butler, Business Manager

Assistant Business Managers Ward Stevenson and Dave Johnson; Co-ed Business Manager Laurel Kimbrough.

With the 1962 edition, the CHANTICLEER celebrated its fiftieth year. Having chosen yellow as the secondary color to symbolize this Golden Anniversary, the staff members attempted to capture in words and pictures the essence of another college year. Among the changes in this year's format were the use of composite fraternity pictures, the incorporation of the School of Nursing into the main part of the book, and the introduction of a Greek Life section.

Working under extreme pressure, writers, typists, photographers, captioners, and sub-editors devoted their time and abilities to publishing the 400-plus pages of the Duke annual. Composed of students from all four classes, the staff is divided into business and editorial sections. The major concerns of the business staff are the election of the Beauty Queen, preparation of the directory and the classes section, and distribution of the book in the spring. The editorial staff is responsible for the rest of the book and includes photographers, copy-writers, sub-editors, and the office and caption staffs. Through the combined efforts of its personnel, deadlines are met and the book takes shape.

The masthead of Volume 57 of The Duke Chronicle was headed by Editor Bethany Sue Strong and Business Manager David Goode. Under their guidance, the familiar "Tower of Campus Thought and Action" offered comprehensive, bi-weekly coverage of events which concerned the University community.

A mere report of news items would tend to be dull reading and of little intellectual value. Consequently, the Chronicle is not only a reporter but also an observer and interpreter. Editorial and solicited comments served to spotlight "issues" on campus. In its desire to stimulate and activate the University at large, the Chronicle printed features and running debates on political, social, and intellectual arguments, which controversies were discussed by noted students and faculty members. Debates of particular import were given even broader coverage by means of the "Chronicle Forum of the Air" on radio station WDBS. Comments and reviews of books, movies, speakers, and other cultural events also appeared in each eight-page edition.

DUKENGINEER

The DukEngineer, a product of the technical skill and vocational enthusiasm of University engineering students, is the means whereby research papers submitted in the College of Engineering may be printed. Appearing four times during the academic year, the magazine features articles of general interest and importance in the fields of civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering, as well as the "Engineer's Girl of the Month."

The publication made its debut on campus in 1940 as a mimeographed sheet. In its present form, the DukEngineer is generally recognized as one of the top engineering journals in the country. The quarterly's staff is chosen annually during the spring semester. In the spring of 1961, Bob Whitmore succeeded to the editorship. With Bob wielding the blue-pencil, the DukEngineer has continued to be of considerable value to the technically-inclined student and to the layman.

The Independent Dormitory Council, organized six years ago by the independents themselves, plays an active role in University affairs. Officially recognized as a branch of the M.S.G.A., the Council acts as a sounding board for the thoughts and opinions of independent students on campus, and works for the improvement of independent dormitory facilities.

IDC sponsored intramural teams (supplied with new maroon and gold jerseys), a homecoming display, and numerous social functions. Under its auspices, several additional phones were installed. The group discussed dormitory problems with deans and M.S.G.A. leaders and took steps to reorganize the Council.

IDC is composed of the elected executive council, the appointed cabinet, the IDC Court, and the Council itself, consisting of floor representatives elected by dormitory members.

HARLEQUINS

In the spring of 1961, a group of men who "just like to sing" joined the tradition of informal vocal entertainment so popular at Ivy League schools. The Harlequins, as they called themselves, developed a unique style and tested its appeal at open-houses and the Joe College Lawn Concert. The group's repertoire includes the close harmony of "barbershop" melodies as well as modern ballads; as evidenced by "The Old Duke Privy," the accent is always on humor and a catchy tune.

Auditions last fall swelled the group's membership to seventeen voices. At dances, fraternity parties, and local conventions and banquets, the refreshing style of the Harlequins was loudly applauded. Finding themselves in increasing demand, the group has recorded a collection of their songs, which will be released in the near future by a nationally-known record company.

RADIO COUNCIL

Created in 1948, the Radio Council supervises the functions of the Duke Broadcasting System. It is composed of student representatives from East, West, Hanes, and the School of Engineering; the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women; the WDBS station managers; and a faculty advisor. Jack Carsten served as chairman of the Council this year.

The Radio Council formulates the basic policies of WDBS. It handles the broadcasting format and approves the budget and expenditures of the station. The station managers, key members of the council, are responsible for the immediate problems of the station.

The Council's activities culminated in the annual May banquet. At this time awards were presented to WDBS personnel for outstanding service and ability.

RADIO ENGINEERS

The Engineer's Radio Association, which has received both local and national awards, turned the tables this year and initiated its own presentation, "The Confederate States of America Award." This honor is to be bestowed annually on an amateur radio operator in the Confederate states, during the years 1961-1965.

The E.R.A. dates from the early 1930's, and its objectives have remained unchanged. It provides a ham radio station where engineering students can both gain practical experience in radio-electronics, and also enjoy a worthwhile hobby. The students may use the facilities of the Association to acquire hours toward a federal license for ham radio operators. This year, the club sponsored Morse Code classes in co-operation with the School of Engineering, and worked to improve the Duke ham station

What we need is a mechanic!

Founded by the M.S.G.A. and operating under the supervision of the Radio Council, WDBS celebrated its thirteenth year of providing good listening entertainment for East and West campuses. The station's record is an impressive one: WDBS was cited as the best collegiate unit in the nation in 1956 and received Public Service Awards from the National Safety Council in 1959 and 1960.

One of the station's aims is to stimulate University interest in timely current events—happenings of world, national, and local import. To realize this end, WDBS aired the Commonwealth of Children Symposium, the controversial "Chronicle Forum of the Air," and President Kennedy's Address at Chapel Hill.

The remainder of the newly expanded, twenty-four hour broadcast day was concerned with "The Sound of Music." Musical tastes, especially among college students, are varied. WDBS assumed the difficult task of pleasing everyone and met with surprising success. With its expanded facilities in Gray Building and a large staff of willing student employees, WDBS and Station Manager Jack Carsten are to be complimented on the diverse programming and interesting format which they have devised.

HOOF 'N' HORN

Hoof 'n' Horn celebrated its twenty-sixth year at Duke by again entertaining guests at Joe College Weekend and Commencement with a delightful musical comedy.

As the oldest original musical comedy organization in the South, the group maintains financial independence and complete freedom from faculty supervision. Its policy calls for plays written, directed, and performed by members of the student body. In 1952, however, the club produced its first professional play, "Anything Goes." Since that time, Hoof 'n' Horn has entertained the campus with professional as well as student scripts. This year, under the direction of President Bill Nickle, Hoof 'n' Horn went directly to Broadway for the highly successful production of "Once Upon A Mattress." The group also added a "professional" touch to the Homecoming Show with the presentation of a skit.

Any student who has taken part in one show is considered a full-fledged member of Hoof 'n' Horn. Try-outs for the annual spring production are held in the middle of the second semester.

DUKE PLAYERS

In 1961-62 the Duke Players, an organization as old as the campus itself, again presented a year of fine theater. Upon their return to the campus last fall, the Players headed for Branson and rehearsals of the first production of the season. Jean Girardoux' "Tiger at the Gates" was presented in Page and received wide acclaim from student and community audiences.

Later in the semester, the group scored with readings and one-act plays in Branson. The highly successful "Six Characters in Search of an Author" was the second major offering of the year. The spring semester brought additional readings and plays from the group. Try-outs for Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Our Teeth" were held in February. The play was presented in Page Auditorium during the Angier B. Duke Finalists' Weekend.

The Players is a rather informal organization, preferring open houses and other social activities to weekly meetings. The sole requirement for membership is fifty hours of work during the season.

SHOE 'N' SLIPPER

Twice each year the Shoe 'n' Slipper Club responds to the "call of the wild" Duke's answer to such famed flings as the Winter Carnival, Fancy Dress, or the Princeton-Yale Weekend. The fall festivities go under the name of Shoe 'n' Slipper and an October football weekend this year saw Lionel Hampton supply the tones for a Friday afternoon concert and a Friday night dance. Everything again came to a standstill as Joe College stalked the campus during the last weekend of April. Counting all the fringe benefits, such as float-building and picnics, the frolic was expanded into a five-day weekend. Mr. Joe College was announced at the traditional lawn concert, always the hub of the big whirl.

Formed in 1949, the Shoe 'n' Slipper Club has a membership of 1200 to 1400, varying from year to year. Freshmen men are sold bids which entitle them to four happy years of Shoe 'n' Slippering. The Council is composed of one representative from each house on West Campus, and from this group the Executive Committee is selected. Denny Block steered the Club through another year of big bands, gala dances, chicken wire and napkins, and squashed box lunches.

PEP BOARD

A "borrowed" fire-engine was but one of the fall capers of Pep Board—and the bright, shining vehicle symbolized a "red-letter" year of enthusiasm, spirit, and good sportsmanship. With the year hardly under way, the group staged the first pep rally, introducing freshmen to Duke spirit during Orientation Week. Later, as the Carolina game approached, the Board pulled out all the stops, flooding the campus with pictures of Duke football stars and the clever slogan, "Do you know . . . ? You should. He's going to help us beat UNC!" Other spirit-boosting stratagems included the bonfire, victory telegrams, posters, and organized cheering sections.

Headed by Lynn Taliaferro and John Truesdell, the committee worked tirelessly to create and maintain interest and partisanship for Duke's intercollegiate athletic activities. After the basketball season, the Board concentrated on the selection of a Blue Devil to succeed Jack Hart and on the election of a new cheering squad.

CHEERLEADERS

With a swirl of blue and white skirts and a resounding "Give me a D," the cheerleaders helped inspire Duke football and basketball teams to highly successful seasons. Composed of four East co-eds, five men, and this year for the first time, a member of the Nursing School, the squad gets hoarse at all home games and at as many out-of-town contests as possible. Head cheerleader Ubi Freitas directed Duke supporters with a Latin flavor.

Each spring, campus tranquillity is temporarily interrupted by seventy shrill voices, as co-eds compete for the female positions on the squad. From these candidates, a Selections Board chooses ten finalists. The four cheerleaders are then elected in a WSGA assembly. The male members are selected in similar fashion. In connection with Pep Board the cheerleaders sponsor pep rallies and bonfires to awaken and arouse the campus. The Blue Devil of goal-post fame is the eleventh member of this group.

Founded in 1933, the Duke chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers enables civil engineering students to explore their chosen field beyond the confines of the classroom. The Society also brings together student engineers and practicing engineers in North Carolina.

The agenda of the club was filled with lectures and films on the various phases of civil engineering. Seeking to gain valuable practical experience, the group went on a field trip to the Norfolk, Virginia, area, and also visited the Chesapeake Bay Bridge and the Roanoke Rapids Tunnel-Dam project. Finally, the club was responsible for a major contribution to the annual Engineers' Show, held in March. In a variety of ways, then, the organization gives its members practice in confronting and solving some of the problems which they will meet after graduation.

The year 1927 marked the first assembling of electrical engineering students at Duke; in that year the American Institute of Radio Engineers was organized. Present membership of the Joint Student Branch stands at approximately forty members. Founded to "foster the dissemination of knowledge of theory and practice of electrical engineering and other related fields of engineering and science," the organization has become a source of assistance in the professional development of its members.

An active schedule of events was sponsored by the Institute, headed this year by Jim Gobbel. Programs ranged in diversity of subject matter, and occasional panel discussions were held at monthly meetings. Discussions on "Professionalism," and "Radio Propagation and the Atmosphere" helped lay the ground-work for the annual spring district conference in Florida.

A·S·M·E

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers was originally founded to keep abreast of technical and theoretical advancements in the field of mechanical engineering. In addition to being "mechanically minded," however, the society tries to stimulate enthusiasm and to encourage interest in student projects. The group, which this year included some fifty-five engineers, was led by President Russell Partin in the pursuit of its objectives. The members of the society met monthly to hear outstanding speakers from industry.

The November meeting was held jointly with the North Carolina State College chapter, and several short field trips were made to local industrial concerns. A delegation of ASME members represented Duke at the regional conference in Miami, Florida. The year's activities were climaxed by a technical essay contest in March and a departmental banquet in May.

BENCH AND BAR

The Bench and Bar Society, founded in 1935, brings undergraduate students into closer contact with the legal profession. The organization's purpose is related to this function; the Society seeks to provide its members with an insight into the various phases of law. The majority, though not all, of the members are pre-law students.

An expanded lecture series was incorporated into the Society's program this year. Dean Latty of the Duke Law School and Dean Brandis of the University of North Carolina Law School were the principal speakers in one series, which contrasted state and national law schools. A second lecture series covered the problems of the young lawyer, in law school and as a practicing attorney.

The members of the Society viewed several films about law, which were narrated by law students or by actual members of the profession. The members also participated in a mock trial.

PRE-MEDICAL SOCIETY

The Duke Pre-Medical Society, founded in 1937, brings the undergraduate student interested in medicine into closer contact with the medical profession. Through carefully planned programs of speakers, tours, and advice, the Society acquaints the prospective medical student with the duties and obligations of the practicing physician and with the opportunities open to the student upon completion of his studies. The Society is especially helpful in informing the pre-medical student of the situations he will encounter upon beginning his practice as a physician.

At its weekly meetings, the Society hears noted speakers from the many fields of medicine. The student is encouraged to observe operations and doctors' rounds at Duke Hospital and is mailed a copy of the monthly Caduceus, which informs him about progress within the profession. In addition, The Order of Hippocrates, the Society's scholastic honorary, initiates new members annually, and the Advisory Council is prepared to help freshman members solve whatever academic problems they may have.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

To render service and to develop friendship are the aims of the Duke chapter of Alpha Phi Omega. Since its establishment in May, 1955, this service organization has participated in such activities as working at the Children's Museum and holding an orientation program for foreign students.

The purpose of the fraternity is to assemble college men in the spirit of the Scout oath and law. The twelve-member brotherhood was led this year by President Jim Marsh. More recent projects included giving assistance to the local United Fund, working with local Scout organizations, and ushering at basketball games. The group also devoted its efforts to work on the annual rummage sale and to the donation of gift-baskets for needy families at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

DEBATE TEAM

A tradition on the Duke campus and a distinct part of the University's educational and public relations program, the Debate Team is an outlet for students interested in forensics. Participation in formal debate enables these students to gain proficiency in the methods of uncovering and analysing facts, of arriving at logical conclusions, and of presenting their arguments in an effective, persuasive manner.

The team participates annually in meets throughout the country. During the past year, the Duke team played host for both the Tau Kappa Alpha and the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournaments. The team was faced with the challenge this year of matching the record of the preceding team, which qualified for the West Point National Tournament and narrowly missed the finals.

DUKE SPORTS CAR CLUB

The parking lot of a nearby shopping center was the scene of this Sunday afternoon gymkhana.

WOOLWORTH'S
KROGER

In three years, the Duke Sports Car Club has literally zoomed its way from non-existence to a membership of some twenty avid racers. The organization's monthly meetings featured racing films from major sports car tracks around the world.

In addition to these meetings, the Club sponsored six racing events on campus. There were three gymkhanas, held in October, March, and May. In trying to cover the course in the fastest possible time, the members turned the local parking lots into smoky clouds of burnt rubber and bursts of thunderous screams. There were also three rallies. In the latter case, emphasis is placed on elapsed time rather than speed. The drivers try to reach various checkpoints on the torturous course at an average speed and in a specified time.

The Club's activities reached beyond the Durham area to include the national and regional races of the Sports Car Club of America. Many members served as flagmen and pit stewards in these important events. The Duke Sports Car Club, in association with similar clubs throughout the country, stimulates interest in the exciting field of competitive racing.

WOMAN'S RECREATION ASSOCIATION

The membership of the Women's Recreation Association consists of the entire student body of the Women's College and the School of Nursing. Cooperating with the Woman's Physical Education Department, the group sponsors the intramural program on East Campus, and arranges sports day and a freshman picnic.

The WRA has several Co-Rec Open Houses in the gym on Friday nights, when students participate in special co-rec activities or use the swimming pool and gymnastic equipment. The big event on the WRA calendar is the Co-Rec Carnival, when fraternities and dorms are paired together for competition in relays, sports events, and games.

Special interest groups under the auspices of WRA are Pegasus, Nereidian, Terpsichorean, and the Tennis Club.

TERPSICHOREAN

Terpsichorean, the modern dance club, attracts members from both East and West campuses. Directed this year by President Jeanne Thompson, the group met weekly for rehearsals and programs. In these practice sessions, club members developed a greater knowledge of modern dance, from basic technical movements to the principles of more advanced choreography. This is the purpose of the club: to increase the skill of its members and their understanding of the dance. Their knowledge and art is then shared with the Duke-Durham community.

The disciples of the Greek muse Terpsichore presented two programs to explain the techniques and principles of modern dance. The winter program, "A Study in Movement," and the spring program, "The Use of Space," were preceded by a lecture-demonstration. In April, Terpsichorean presented an "Evening of Dance," a performance which capped the members' experiences and their experiments in interpretative dance.

PEGASUS

A part of the extra-curricular program for Duke co-eds since 1941, Pegasus was formerly combined with the Men's Riding Club. The group is now composed of girls from East and Hanes, who are chosen on the basis of their equestrian skill. This year, tryouts were held in the fall and in the spring. The club's membership was increased by about four girls each semester. Under the leadership of Jean Gaddy, the girls shared their knowledge of good riding technique in the American Saddle Style. Meeting on Friday afternoons, the girls rode the trails surrounding the Pine Knoll Stables in Durham.

The annual horse show, held in May, aided the club in its desire to promote interest in riding. Red-jacketed equestrians demonstrated their skill in a variety of standard events. A drill team and musical chairs high-lighted the show. The club's activities also included group parties and an initiation ceremony.

NEREIDIAN

The members of Nereidian are concerned with acquiring and perfecting skill and ability in the water. The club actively promotes an interest in synchronized swimming, diving, and aquatic stunts by its annual spring show. In preparation for this program, the girls meet to work on individual and group techniques. They create their own theme and select music for suitable accompaniment. Each year the show, with its colorful costumes and expert swimmers, attracts a large audience.

Through their weekly practice sessions, the Nereids gain a smoother, more graceful style and a sense of precise rhythm. Those interested in developing proficiency in the art of swimming and in enjoying an opportunity for creative expression were invited to try out in October. Under the auspices of the WRA and the Physical Education Department, the fifty girls who became members exhibited an enthusiasm and spirit of which their president, Betsy Glynn, could be justly proud. As one of the special interest groups on East, the Nereidian Club helps fulfill the need for mental relaxation and physical exercise.

Organized in 1949, the Duke AFROTC regiment is a compact unit which prepares selected students for active and reserve officer duty in the United States Air Force. The plan of instruction includes the required AFROTC courses as well as regular University subjects. The basic air science program is open to all men who meet the requirements of the AFROTC. Graduation to the advanced level of preparation rests on the cadet's passing the Advanced Selection Board. An important phase of the four-year program is a weekly laboratory, designed to develop the leadership potential of individual cadets. The Corps is led by students who have advanced from the rank of cadet airman to that of cadet officer.

The Department of Air Science sponsors a number of extra-curricular activities. Cadets are urged to participate in those activities which appeal to them and from which they will profit. The Photo Lab, the Precision Drill Team, the Drum and Bugle Corps, and the Rifle Team contribute to the further development of cadets. The Corps' newspaper, Contact, and MARS, the Military Affiliate Radio System, also invite new cadet members.

Since 1941, Duke has actively co-operated with the Department of the Navy in training future officers for the Navy and Marine Corps. The NROTC program, offering a four-year course in naval science, leads to commission as an ensign in the Navy or as a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps.

Summer cruises are an important part of the program; aboard ship, the prospective officer is acquainted with life at sea and is given a chance to apply the nautical knowledge he has gained in the classroom. The cruises are usually taken between the junior and senior years and may include duty in the Mediterranean with the active fleet. Instead of a cruise, the officer candidate may take his summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

The Duke NROTC Unit includes the Band, Drill Team, Rifle Team, and Unit newsletter, the Dolphin. In addition, the Unit offers to qualified midshipmen a Flight Indoctrination Program leading to a career in Naval Aviation.

The Duke NROTC has a permanent staff of seven Navy and Marine officers as well as six senior enlisted men. All participants in the program are part of the Midshipmen Regiment.

SEMPER FIDELIS

Row 1: Maj. Wilkerson, Advisor; S. Gager, President

The society which bears the Marine Corps motto, "Semper Fidelis," seeks to create closer ties among those who have been or will be associated with the United States Marines. It prepares the ROTC students for Marine officer candidacy and for future service in the Marine Corps.

Commanded by Midshipman Stu Gager, the Society sponsored an extensive program of social and business activities. Among the social calendar's highlights were the Birthday Ball in November and several informal barbecues in the Spring. On the more serious side, field trips to Marine air bases and camps in the local area were undertaken by the members.

The Duke Beta Chapter of Semper Fidelis was established in 1952 by Marine option students of Duke and the University of North Carolina. It was later chartered and is now an active unit in the Marine ROTC program, which is offered by more than fifty American colleges and universities.

HONORARIES

WITH the great number of national and local honorary societies, one might well ask the question, "What is the purpose of an honorary?" According to the various charters, the purpose of an honorary fraternity embraces the following: first, to recognize achievement in an individual, to single out, sometimes collectively, students who have demonstrated admirable qualities of leadership, scholarship, and a general proficiency in one or many fields. Moreover, it would seem that an honorary seeks to bring together those individuals who share a common interest. The result is a greater knowledge of a particular field, to say nothing of the many valuable friendships formed in the course of membership.

Since the inception of Phi Beta Kappa almost two centuries ago, honoraries have played an important, an integral part in American college life. This role of such societies has held true at Duke, since the University made the transition to educational prominence some thirty years ago.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Phi Beta Kappa, founded on December 5, 1776, at the College of William and Mary, is the oldest honorary scholastic society in the United States. There are now 170 local chapters, the Duke chapter being chartered in 1919. Phi Beta Kappa's emphasis is on the liberal arts and sciences, and it leaves to other organizations the recognition of academic success in other fields. To be considered for election, undergraduate students must have a 3.30 quality-point average for six semesters while earning a minimum of 90 semester hours. Elections are made in October, February, and during Commencement Week. At the Commencement meeting a limited number of Ph.D. candidates are also elected. Officers of the Duke chapter for 1961-62 were Dean R. Florence Brinkley, President; Dr. Karl M. Wilbur, Vice President; Dr. William F. Stinespring, Secretary-Treasurer; and Dr. Harold T. Parker and Dr. Paul Welsh, Members of the Executive Committee.

WHO'S WHO

This year fifty-seven Duke University seniors were nominated to be listed in the "Blue Book" of academics, Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges. To be included in the ranks of America's collegiate aristocracy is surely one of the graduate's highest honors. Duke students receiving this distinction were recognized for outstanding records in both academic and extra-curricular activities. In addition to the significance of this accolade, students in Who's Who may take advantage of a student placement service which provides recommendations for job or graduate study applicants. Chosen because their past accomplishments are indicative of future success as well, these men and women exemplify the term "leaders of tomorrow."

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

The Duke Chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa, the national senior men's leadership honorary, was founded in 1934. Members are selected on the basis of outstanding character, service, and leadership in the campus community. Achievement is recognized in the areas of scholarship, athletics, student government, social and religious affairs, publications, speech, music, drama and other arts. With this representative group of campus leaders as a nucleus, ODK works to promote better understanding between the student body and the faculty. Under the direction of President Doug Chapin, the group tapped members in the fall to bring its total membership, including those initiated last spring, to twenty-one.

PHI KAPPA DELTA

In 1944, the members of Omicron Delta Kappa, the senior leadership fraternity for men, met with the student leaders of the Woman's College in order to organize a counterpart of ODK on East Campus. Phi Kappa Delta, as the new group was called, has, since its founding, sought to recognize representatives from various campus activities who are outstanding in their scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Guided by President Jane Bowness, the twenty-three members of the group met twice monthly during the past year. At these informal Sunday dinners, campus problems and matters of mutual concern were brought up for discussion.

SANDALS

Founded in the 1930's to recognize girls who demonstrate outstanding leadership potential and who are exemplary in their character and service to the University during their freshman year, Sandals is a sophomore honorary with a membership of twenty girls. These girls provide the University with such services as guiding prospective students on campus tours, assisting during Freshman Orientation Week, and aiding in the running of WSGA assemblies. The Sandals' social activities include banquets, a mid-winter tea for the Trustees of Duke University, and a fall dance co-sponsored by Beta Omega Sigma, the counterpart of Sandals on West Campus. Included among the important educational aspects of Sandals' program are monthly seminars, studies and evaluations of school policies. Throughout the year, these girls work on fund-raising projects for the Sandals Scholarship, awarded each year to an outstanding rising sophomore co-ed.

BETA OMEGA SIGMA

Beta Omega Sigma, once devoted to heckling freshmen, has evolved into an organization devoted instead to helping first-year male students. A highly regarded sophomore leadership honorary, BOS promotes active student participation in campus affairs, thus developing the leadership potential of its members. These same sophomores pitch in and lend a hand in various campus activities; for example, they serve as guides for the many guests during Homecoming Weekend and jointly sponsor the traditional BOS-Sandals dance held in the fall. The group is dedicated to encouraging individual responsibility as described in "A Code for Community Living." Aside from its various contributions to the University community, BOS provides formal recognition of those freshmen who are exemplary in their demonstrated qualities of leadership, scholarship, and service.

IVY

Ivy is the East Campus sophomore scholastic honorary. It was founded in 1937 by the Class of 1940 of the Woman's College. Ivy's purpose is to encourage scholarship and to stimulate intellectual curiosity among women students. Members are tapped after the first semester of their freshman year or in the fall of their sophomore year. To be eligible for membership, a candidate must have a scholastic average of 3.25 for the first semester, or a 3.5 average for the entire year. Each year Ivy holds a joint banquet with Phi Eta Sigma to honor all freshmen who have a "B" average on their mid-semester grades. Another annual event is the presentation of the Dorm Scholarship Cup to the East Campus house with the highest scholastic average.

PHI ETA SIGMA

Phi Eta Sigma is the local scholastic honorary for sophomores on West Campus. Phi Eta Sigma recognizes outstanding scholarship and high potential at the beginning of a student's college career and initiates all freshman men who have attained a 3.5 average for their first semester or their entire first year at Duke. After tapping freshmen, the honorary becomes an administrative structure for academic leadership throughout the sophomore year. This year Phi Eta Sigma conducted tours for freshmen, ushered at various university functions, and joined with Ivy to honor, at a special banquet, all freshmen who had earned at least a "B" average at mid-semester. Encouraged by their sponsor, Dean Barney L. Jones, these men arranged a tutoring service for new freshmen, in their attempt to aid others and to increase their membership.

The Arnold Air Society is a national honorary designed to salute outstanding cadets in each detachment. Founded in 1947 to honor General H. H. "Hap" Arnold, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces during World War II, the society has been active on the Duke campus since 1950. Various members of the society direct the local Civil Air Patrol program. As part of this program, they teach drill procedure in the Durham schools and sponsor an annual drill competition for neighboring AFROTC and NROTC drill teams.

AFROTC cadets seeking membership in the Arnold Air Society must be passed by a selection board and must maintain a "C" average in their overall curriculum. Under the direction of Major Halstead, members devote themselves to the promotion of good citizenship, the real goal of the Arnold Air Society.

CORSAIRS
DUKE UNIVERSITY

Since its first initiation in January, 1958, the Corsairs Society has worked to honor outstanding midshipmen, to increase the "esprit de corps" in the NROTC, and to stimulate interest in the Navy on the Duke campus. Founded to recognize outstanding achievement by midshipmen in the Naval Reserve Program, a "B" average in Naval Science and an overall "C" average determine eligibility for juniors and seniors.

Corsairs was established because Duke needed an NROTC honorary fraternity. At present, its members are making plans to expand eventually into a national naval honorary society. On the Duke campus the Corsairs are instrumental in promoting interest and achievement in naval activities. Meetings are held at regular intervals, at which times the group invites naval officers to give featured talks.

The North Carolina Gamma Chapter of Tau Beta Pi, the national scholastic honorary for engineers, was instituted on the Duke campus on January 10, 1948. Since that time, the group has endeavored to mark in a fitting manner those who have distinguished themselves by scholarship and exemplary character as undergraduates, or by their attainments as alumni. The prime goal of the honorary is to foster a spirit of liberal culture in the engineering colleges of America. Selection of members is made from engineers in the top eighth of the junior class or in the top fifth of the senior class.

Tau Beta Pi held a tapping ceremony and banquet in the fall and another in the spring. In addition, the honorary sponsored five weekly slide rule lectures, given by members of the faculty, for the benefit of interested science, math, or engineering students.

Alpha Kappa Psi is the oldest and largest professional fraternity in Business Administration. The Beta Eta chapter, chartered in 1929, was one of the first organizations to be founded at Duke. The fraternity's ends, as set forth in its charter, are to foster research in the fields of commerce, accounts, and finance; to educate the public to appreciate and demand higher ideals therein; and to promote and advance in colleges and universities, courses leading to degrees in Business Administration.

During the past year, the group visited the North Carolina Trade Fair in Charlotte, the Mid-East District Convention in Norfolk, and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. The fraternity also sponsored the open lecture, "How to Choose the Right Company," and invited leading Durham businessmen to speak at its dinner meetings.

In 1932, "Le Salon Français" was established through the efforts of Dr. and Mrs. Neal Dow. Six years later, this informal group was chartered as the Alpha chapter of Tau Psi Omega, the national honorary French fraternity. Initiation is limited to those students who maintain a "B" average in their French studies and an over-all "C" average; a reasonable fluency in the language is requisite.

All students who would further their knowledge of France are invited to the weekly French table, held in the East Campus Union every Tuesday evening. The Alpha chapter also produces a major French play annually. These performances feature an all-student cast. A number of French picnics are also sponsored by the group. The original project of the Dows has kept to its purpose: to arouse interest in the very "esprit de France."

For a little foreign flavor on the Duke campus, try the Christmas Fiesta as enthusiastically celebrated by the participants, the members of the Spanish honorary. Flamenco dances to the click of castanets were in order at the spring dinner and dance. The initiation banquet was a little more sedate, as the society was reminded of its true purposes. Sigma Delta Pi, sponsored by Senor Castellano, strives to create a broader knowledge and a deeper appreciation of Spanish contributions to culture, to promote better relations between Spanish and English-speaking countries, and to recognize students who have demonstrated superior ability and interest in Spanish studies.

Sigma Delta Pi also acquaints its members with opportunities for travel and employment open to them. The society's prerequisites are a "B" average in Spanish courses and an overall "B" average.

Kappa Delta Pi is a national education honorary with 220 chapters. As a result of the increasing emphasis on education, the 35-year-old Duke chapter has been confronted with great responsibilities and challenges. In response to this challenge, several meetings this year were devoted to discussion of ways to meet the increasing need for and the problems facing new teachers. All students interested in education were invited to attend. The society also met to hear speakers from the various areas of education and gathered for the annual year-end banquet. Membership in the society is limited to juniors, seniors, and graduate students maintaining a "B" average in education courses and standing in the upper fifth of their classes. Initiation also implies that these students have the potential for successful teaching careers.

VARSITY "D"

The Varsity "D" Club is, as its name implies, the West Campus honorary recognizing athletic achievement. To be eligible for membership, a student must have earned a letter in any inter-scholastic sport. Once admitted, the student pays the nominal yearly dues and thus becomes a member in good standing. He is then free to attend all meetings and the banquet for Duke lettermen.

In addition to these meetings, to which the group invites guest speakers from the world of sports, and the banquet, the Varisty "D" Club also sponsors the Blue-White games and carries on a special campaign for the American Cancer Association or Heart Fund. The wide range of the club's activities accentuates its goal— to serve the athletic department, never losing sight of the best interest of both coaches and athletes.

The Duke chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon, the national mathematics honorary, was established on campus in 1932, eighteen years after the national organization was founded at Syracuse University. The group seeks to stimulate interest and to promote scholarship in the field of mathematics. The membership qualifications, a "B" average in math through integral calculus and an overall "B" average, are indicative of the honorary's high standards.

The more than fifty members of Pi Mu Epsilon convened twice during the past year to initiate new members. At these meetings, professors and senior mathematics majors addressed the audience on progress and opportunity in the general field of mathematics. Director Carol Ann Wilson and Vice-Director Jim Sawers led the group.

PI MU EPSILON

KAPPA KAPPA PSI

The Alpha Gamma chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi, the national music honorary, was founded at Duke in 1922. The organization was inactive from 1945, when its activities were suspended because of the war, until 1958, when it was renewed. The purpose of Kappa Kappa Psi is to acknowledge outstanding musicians. The standards for membership are entirely in keeping with this aim. To be eligible, a student must have participated, for at least one year, in either the Concert or the Marching Band.

These superior musicians entertained visiting bands after football games, helped to sponsor and make arrangements for the High School Band Day, and ushered at the presentations of the Concert Band. Kappa Kappa Psi ended its active year by designing and decorating a float for the Joe College Parade.

DELTA CHI EPSILON

Delta Chi Epsilon, founded at Duke in April, 1959, rewards outstanding academic achievement within the junior and senior classes of Civil Engineering. The organization was established to recognize the characteristics necessary for success in an engineering career and to aid in the development of those characteristics in the undergraduate engineer. To qualify for membership, the undergraduate must, as a junior, rank in the upper fifth of his class or, as a senior, in the upper third of his class.

In addition to maintaining an extensive file of pamphlets and brochures, the honorary keeps information on graduate programs and available financial assistance. Delta Chi Epsilon endeavored to promote better student-faculty relations through constructive criticism of professors and courses, and by an annual student-faculty banquet.

DELTA PHI RHO ALPHA

Delta Phi Rho Alpha, the local athletic honorary for women, encourages participation and interest in various sports. Its members set an example by active participation in basketball, volleyball, tennis, swimming, bowling, and badminton. In addition, Delta Phi Rho Alpha recognizes students who have shown interest, good sportsmanship, and ability in at least two sports.

Established on the Duke campus in 1921, the honorary is composed of women from the junior and senior classes; members are usually tapped in the spring. Each year the group presents a gold key to the senior woman who, in their estimation, has most actively promoted athletics on East Campus. In these ways the honorary emphasizes and contributes to the growth of athletic opportunities for women.

PSI CHI DELTA

Outstanding Duke students, majoring in psychology, find a common meeting ground in Psi Chi Delta, one of 134 chapters of the national society, Psi Chi. The purpose of Psi Chi is to stimulate interest and to recognize achievement in psychology. To fulfill its goals, the membership regulations of the organization require a psychology major with at least six hours of psychology, a psychology course average of 3.0, and an overall grade-point average of 2.8.

Formerly a local honorary, the Duke organization received a national charter in 1959. The group invites speakers connected with the various phases of psychology and informs its members of opportunities in graduate work. In addition, Psi Chi Delta publishes a newsletter in which the latest advances in psychological research are recorded.

ORDER OF HIPPOCRATES

The Order of Hippocrates, the honorary of the Duke Pre-Medical Society, recognizes scholars of proven leadership ability and of good character. To be considered for the Order, a student must be a member of the Pre-Medical Society, have a 3.0 overall average after a minimum of 75 semester hours, and have a 3.0 average in courses treating the pre-medical sciences. Since the first initiation banquet in 1955, about fifty members have been admitted into the society. Under the direction of Titus Allen, the organizational program this year was devoted to gathering information about past members. These thumbnail sketches appeared in the Caduceus, the pre-medical monthly, and were accompanied by accounts of the work now being done by former Duke students in the several medical fields.

David Allen, Robert Carraway, Walter Scarborough, Titus Allen.

ORDER OF ST. PATRICK

The Knights of the Order of St. Patrick was founded in 1945 to inspire pride in the College of Engineering, to promote good fellowship and understanding among members, to stimulate interest and participation in the extra-curricular activities of the Engineering College, and to foster better relations between the students and faculty. This year, directed by Honorable St. Patrick Jim Gobbel, the chief concern of the Order has been to provide a nucleus for an engineering long-range planning committee. It also sponsored, with Tau Beta Pi, the Slide Rule lectures for freshmen engineering and science students. Membership is open to chivalrous juniors, seniors, and faculty members of the College of Engineering who prove themselves worthy of being knighted by the Order of St. Patrick.

PI TAU SIGMA

Since 1944, Pi Tau Sigma, national honorary in mechanical engineering, has played a leading role in University engineering activities. The organization's purpose is threefold: to foster the high ideals of the engineering profession, to stimulate interest in departmental activities, and to develop co-operation among the various branches of the School of Engineering. To be eligible for membership, a student must be in the top 25 per cent of the junior class or the top 35 per cent of the senior mechanical engineering class.

Each year, an Outstanding Sophomore Award is presented to the sophomore engineer attaining the highest academic average. Also, the senior with the best engineering paper in class, or in professional society competition, receives an award. Other functions include review lectures for the E.I.T. examination and an initiation banquet for new members.

SIGMA PI SIGMA

The only national physics honor society, Sigma Pi Sigma limits its chapters to accredited colleges and universities offering a challenging program in physics. The Duke chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma was founded in 1925 and is the second oldest in the nation. The Society recognizes students of proven scholastic ability who show promise of achievement in physics. In addition, it promotes student interest in advanced research and study.

To qualify for membership in Sigma Pi Sigma, one must have completed eleven semester hours in physics, having maintained at least a "B" average both in physics and in overall course work. After a fall tapping, the group, headed by Sam So, began the year with a business meeting, followed by the Fall Picnic. During the remainder of the year, the members took part in meetings, lectures, tours, and the Spring Picnic.

PI SIGMA ALPHA

The local chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha, the national political science honorary, was founded at Duke in 1955. To be eligible for induction, a student must exhibit a notable interest in the field of political science by maintaining a "B" average after at least ten semester hours of the study of governments. The student must, in addition, rank in the upper third of his class. Pi Sigma Alpha seeks to foster student interest in governmental activities and to create an awareness of public affairs by bringing important current issues to the attention of the University community. The group also sponsors numerous panel discussions and a symposium. The local chapter was guided this year by President Rex Adams and Dr. Roma S. Cheek, the group's sponsor.

THETA ALPHA PI

Since its reactivation on the campus in 1958, the Duke chapter of the national honorary dramatics fraternity, Theta Alpha Phi, has succeeded in creating interest in the theater by honoring outstanding achievement in dramatic arts. The major requirement for membership is significant contribution to dramatic production on the Duke campus; contributions may range from a starring role in a smash hit, to directing, playwriting, production or business management. New members are chosen at the beginning of each semester. Informal meetings are called when necessary, preceding the two initiation rituals each year.

The increased membership of Theta Alpha Phi was guided this year by faculty advisor Victor Michalak and President Lola Powers. By stressing the importance of theater arts in college life, the honorary has furthered its goal of encouraging individual and collective interest in dramatics.

GREEKS

A FRATERNITY stands for many things: leadership, scholarship, and friendship. At Duke, the force of this brotherhood is felt by those who sincerely believe that, be it shown only by a moment of laughter or the warmth of a strong handshake, the fraternity system is a lasting example of the benefits of common ideals.

College fraternities originated with the founding of Phi Beta Kappa in 1776. In 1870, the first sorority was formed. From these beginnings, the Greek system has grown and spread, while aspiring to the highest concepts of service, loyalty, courage, cooperation, and integrity.

The word "fraternity" brings to mind memories: of dances, cabin parties, dates, and fun. But in reality, there are many experiences which cannot merely be termed "fun." The fraternity man may remember a Christmas party for underprivileged youngsters; the sorority woman may recall emotions during the Fraternity-Sorority Sing. These, too, are part of the meaning of fraternity; these, too, are part of the experience of college.

The stated purpose of the Panhellenic Council, the representative body of sororities at Duke, is to promote co-operation among sororities and to coordinate sorority activities with those of the school and city. The Council consists of two members from each sorority plus thirteen ex-officio members, the sorority presidents. The group meets weekly in an attempt to find new methods of unifying the thirteen member sisterhoods to work for the good of the individual sisters and the University community.

The activities of the Council, directed by President Lowell Snowdon, began with the hectic East Campus rush. Later in the fall, in conjunction with the IFC, Pan-Hel sponsored the annual interfraternity sing. In the spring, in addition to presenting a fashion show, Pan-Hel promoted the Greek Week Carnival. The group also presents an annual scholarship award and sponsors a foster child in Greece.

Bill Lamb, President

The Duke Interfraternity Council was organized to supervise matters relating to the Greek chapters on campus. It consists of two principal bodies—the Council of Presidents and the Executive Board. The Council of Presidents, which initiates legislation, is made up of the presidents of the eighteen social fraternities at Duke, and is governed by the President of the IFC. The Executive Board, the judicial branch of the IFC, delegates much of its authority to the Investigating Committee. This special committee probes possible violations of the IFC Code and decides if the offenders should be brought before the Board.

The IFC this year inaugurated "open relations" between freshmen and fraternity men during the first semester. As a result, Formal Rush, which for the first time took place during the semester break, was not the stiff, uncomfortable affair that it had often been in the past.

GREEK LIFE

Fraternity life at Duke is known to the outside world by many symbols—a lion, a skull and crossbones, an arrow, a lyre, a sword and shield, an anchor, and so on. But for the brother or sister, Greek life holds a deeper meaning. It signifies the brotherhood of a fraternity section or the sisterhood of a room in Carr Building—occult organizations maintained under the watchful, if remote, eyes of the national office. Within fraternal walls, mystic rituals are performed, lasting friendships and associations are made, secret handshakes are gripped, private whistles are whistled, and dues are paid. Almost every Greek devotes some of his time to an active social schedule—cabin parties, bridge and poker tournaments, beer and pizza fests, picnics and banquets, or gatherings of the "clan." The diverse elements of the Greek system are brought together in many of these social events, as well as in scholastic and athletic competition. Each group also undertakes a program of charitable work.

A fraternity is a close group of brothers or sisters chosen for life membership by those who were chosen before them. Each fraternity is naturally the "best on campus," and each group takes pride in the successes of its members in any and all phases of campus life. With the annual revitalization of the Greek orders through the phenomenon of rush, certain memorable features of Greek life are guaranteed continuation. The fraternal "cycle" implies pledge projects and dances, float-building, homecoming displays, pilgrimages to Myrtle—all of which strengthen the bonds of fraternity life.

ALPHA CHI OMEGA

Anne Harper, President; Diana Bole, Rush Chairman.

With dirty knees, big smiles, and happy hearts, the sisters of Alpha Chi Omega began another East Campus rush. Amid joy and confusion, the Alpha Chi's welcomed a wonderful new pledge class. October brought our visiting Province President, a pizza party, and the pledges' Hallowe'en party at the C.P. Hospital (with a party afterwards for actives and pledges). Then the glitter of our semi-formal dance at the Jack Tar, a mouth-watering spaghetti supper for the pledges and their big sisters, and song fest practices. January meant exams and studying, but February finally came with a brand new semester. A beautiful pledge dance, then initiation and new sisters to share the Alpha Chi spirit and excitement of spring events. Peanut Pal Day . . . scholarship banquet . . . fun at picnics and retreat . . . good times at the warehouse working on the float . . . and finally a senior banquet. Another year had passed—a fun-packed year, but also a year of sharing the sisterhood of Alpha Chi Omega.

ALPHA DELTA PI

Kay Goodman, President; Bebe Bradshaw, Rush Chairman.

Diamond pins sparkling, the Omicron Pi's greeted the year in the best "do or die" fashion. After rush parties ranging from the raucous (remember Stuart at the juke-box party?) to the sedate, we found ourselves with pledges so fine we often had trouble heeding Trish's advice. Our pledge banquet, the Hallowe'en party with the Carolina Pi's, weekly visits with the darling and brave CP Hospital children, charity ticket sales—these, with our CHANTICLEER beauty, Phi Bete, and Duchess, helped make those months some of our best. Then amidst vacation, activities and studies, came the Sing, party plans with the KKG's, and our Christmas party. Exams over, a full second semester began for the gals of the violet—the pledge dance, initiation, parties with fraternities, and elections. Joe College and beach-week plans reminded us that our year was drawing to a close. Then after we sang and laughed our way through the Senior Dinner our year was over. Grand memories made it hard to bid our sisters good-bye, even though we could look ahead to next fall's happy reunion.

ALPHA EPSILON PHI

Mal Nathanson, Rush Chairman; Gail Margolis, President.

The AEPhi's welcomed each other back to campus and immediately turned their attention to putting final touches on rush plans. Enthusiasm and anticipation were more than rewarded by the girls who become our pledges. Thanks to their ambitious spirit we now enjoy a newly decorated room. Gail and Judy found their jobs as FAC's exciting and rewarding. Judy also served on Y-Cabinet, while Mal devoted her time to NSA. Adie and Marcia were tapped into Ivy and Adie also worked on this year's Symposium. In the holiday spirit, the chapter filled a Christmas basket for a needy family. At pizza parties, bowling and skating parties, mixers with fraternities from Carolina and State, and at our pajama party at Blu's we let down our hair (or put it up in the latter instance) for a year of real fun. Our wonderful pledge dance and the fun at Joe College rounded out a full social calendar. So we said good-bye to the "year of the pink flannel farce," but know that next year will be just as exciting.

ALPHA PHI

Elsa Ely, Rush Chairman; Patti Groves, President.

Back from beaches and summer jobs, Alpha Phi's jumped into a successful rush season with the help of our field secretary, Jean Ratcliffe. After pledging a wonderful group of girls, we settled into a fall filled with Thursday suppers together, a big-little sister party at the Festa Room, and a Scholarship banquet. The pledges entertained at a Thanksgiving Party and then we Phi's took that much needed break. After Thanksgiving we held a progressive supper (complete with homemade lasagne), and a coffee hour. Then the Christmas whirl began with our annual caroling at the VA hospital, followed by a party at the home of our Alumnae advisor. January found us kicking up our heels at a cabin party and (ugh!) hitting the books for exams. Spring was exciting with the initiation banquet and dance held at the Country Inn. All pitched in to build the Joe College Float, and soon the lucky delegates were chosen for the National Convention. Our annual trip to Myrtle Beach after exams rounded out another fun-filled year.

DELTA GAMMA

Betty Kramer, President; Sally Chaney, Rush Chairman.

The Delta Gammas came back to school ready to plunge into rush with renewed enthusiasm, which resulted in a pledge class of eighteen wonderful girls. For more interesting meetings, the DG's scheduled speakers and special programs every other week. As part of our National Project, we helped out at Butler, the state rehabilitation center for the blind. We also adopted an orphan in Korea. Christmas season found us in the Sing and in a whirl of parties. The party at Butler's was a great success, as was the tea and our annual Christmas dinner. The new semester brought a cabin party, pledge swaps and a formal dinner. Initiation and the pledge dance were moments we had all been awaiting. Spring came, with the beach party in Wilmington during the Azalea Festival, the Parent's Weekend Tea, and Founder's Day Banquet. All too soon the Senior Banquet was here and we were bidding fond farewells to our graduating sisters, with memories of a wonderful year of sisterhood and fun.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

Royce Greenlaw, President; Susan Neff, Rush Chairman.

In a welter of deep knee bends and push-ups led by rush chairmen Susan and Anne, Thetas breathlessly greeted a horde of freshmen with a barrage of smiles and scrapbooks. Beta Rho sophistication gave way to joyous shrieks when twenty girls pledged themselves to the Black and Gold, to Big 'n' Li'l Sister pizza parties, and to Kite Day. Soon afterwards there arose the clatter of pledge paddles and of secret pals haunting secret buddies. As the hour quiz rut drifted into the term paper rut, Thetas still had the Sing, led by Peeress Lynn, coffees, the Founders' Day Banquet, and a surprise Christmas party. To relieve second semester doldrums, Thetas indulged in fun doings—the pledge charity project and the Initiation Banquet, and sad doings—the Senior Farewell Banquet and the "Goodbye" Spring Retreat. Highlighting Spring's "mud-luscious" weekends were the Golden Triad and Joe College. Theta Beach Weekend closed a grand year under Royce, and, ready to repeat the cycle next fall, Thetas departed still booming "T with an H with an ETA. . . ."

KAPPA DELTA

Rooney McKenzie, President; Mary Ellen Surratt, Rush Chairman.

Another momentous year in the annals of Sigma Delta. Rooney and Mary Ellen were overflowing with ideas from the National Convention. One of them, a retreat before rush, helped us to face the avalanche of freshmen, and with new olive-green skirts and rose-white blouses, the KD's ushered in a new year and twenty wonderful pledges. A cabin party with the Tri-Delts, a pizza party with "Bat"— seems like all we had was fun! We were hardly dull Jills, however. KD's made Phi Bete, Class Honors, and the campus beauty polls, too. A Christmas party at the V.A. helped us more than the patients, then Kathy Claus treated us with gifts at a party in our room. February was never fuller—pledge banquet and dance, White Rose Week, mugs, Initiation, friendship. Sixty-six diamond pins, everywhere we looked. Spring brought Joe College, a retreat with the Carolina KD's, and plans for the trip to Myrtle. At last the Golden Anniversary of our founding arrived in April—it was a big success. In fact, as we look back, the whole year was.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA

Joan Jarden, Rush Chairman; Martha McGonigle, President.

With a burst of laughter, a scraping of benches, and a rolling-up of shirt-sleeves, the Kappas whirled into the new year. Aided by "fuhrer" Martha and her accordion at the Heidelburg Party, the girls in blue successfully pinned twenty superlative pledges. With a little tiger and a huge Devil, KKG's won the Homecoming Poster Contest. We discussed music and religion in our seminar and cut a record for children with Cystic Fibrosis. Hilariously flubbing "Lovely Girl" in the sorority sing, we redeemed ourselves by caroling, on pitch, at retirement homes. The holiday season was highlighted with the pledges' surprise for the actives and the Kappa-ATO blast for Edgemont children. Exams over, the Kappa's initiated eager pledges, exclaimed over their sisters presented at the Triad, and then retreated for a weekend. The KKG's joined the ADPi's in a spring frolic and reveled in the sights of Florida and Joe College. Suddenly, it was time for Senior Banquet, Myrtle Beach, and National Convention—time for regretful goodbyes. For the Kappas it had been a "big" year—a challenging and exciting nine months.

PHI MU

Emily Tucker, Rush Chairman; Diana Gordon, President.

The fun and excitement of seeing each other again after the summer had scarcely worn off when Rush was suddenly upon Gamma Epsilon chapter. Emily's parties made us all "think pink" and the night after our "Wizard of Oz" formal party we welcomed the new pledges with a pizza-fest in Carr. Pledging coincided with the visit of our National President, and at the alum picnic afterwards we happily greeted our non-rushers. Fall saw our Girl Scout work get under way, and at Thanksgiving we again sponsored the collection and distribution of baskets for needy families. The pledge class presented the pledge project to the chapter at the Christmas Party. Second semester brought a Big-Little Sister banquet, the gala Pledge Dance, Initiation, and Founders' Day celebration. Finally we'll remember many things—the Friday night bridge club, Jeanette and the Sing, the volleyball tournament, Howard Johnson's, the slumber party at Penny's, and especially what fun it was to be sisters in Phi Mu.

PI BETA PHI

Suzanne Sulzer, Rush Chairman; Mary Morgan, President.

Inspired by summer fun, Pi Phi's returned to Duke prepared to make this the sorority's best possible year. Potential pledges having arrived, each rusher was soon consumed with thoughts of the long but rewarding period ahead. Welcoming the new pledges, the year's activities began with a "cookie shine" and later a banquet at the Hope Valley Country Club. Homecoming arrived and with it the time to greet alums with a breakfast and fond reminiscences. Mary and Helen joined the group just in time for the retreat, with boating, football, skits, and later, serious discussions. We participated in intramurals and the Sing, and visited the old folks' home. Before initiation, the big and little sisters dined at the "Rat." The "steak and beans" dinner, the Monmouth Duo celebration, and the long awaited Triad filled the Spring. Encouraged by our second place trophy last year, work on the Joe College float was spirited. The nostalgic senior banquet and then the big move to the beach ended another year of fun and friendship in Pi Phi.

SIGMA KAPPA

Pat Baugher, Rush Chairman; Gwyn Hutchinson, President.

With a retreat at Aycock's cabin, Alpha Psi started a year of fun and accomplishment. The new pledges were welcomed by a pizza party, surprises from "secret buddies," and a party in their honor with the Lambda Chi's at UNC. Our Brownie troop at Edgemont got into full swing again, with Valerie as leader. For Hallowe'en we donned costumes and went "trick or treating" to collect money for UNICEF. Founders' Day was celebrated by a tea for alumnae. Continuing our tradition of combining philanthropy with fun, we made stuffed dolls as Christmas presents for needy children along the Maine seacoast, and held our annual Christmas Sale to raise funds for philanthropic work. This was soon followed by a Christmas party. To start the new year, the chapter celebrated its thirty-first birthday. Second semester began with a cabin party. Then the pledges became the center of attention as Inspiration Week was followed by initiation and the gala pledge dance. The year was closed with a farewell banquet for the seniors and a fun-filled trip to the beach.

ZETA TAU ALPHA

Judy Adams, President; Marilie Fifer, Rush Chairman.

And suddenly the summer was gone and Zetas plunged headlong into 1961-62. After a "Welcome Back" retreat, 209 Carr feted the rushees for one hectic week, and with the invaluable aid of our rush chairmen we extended the "Call of Zeta" to nineteen of the most gung-ho pledges we've ever seen. Pledges received big sisters on Founders' Day, and the chapter joined them for the Pledge Banquet. The three weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas were packed—song retreat and the Sing, annual Christmas party for the alums, cozy hayride, caroling on West, and a Christmas party for the children of the maids and janitors. Exams came and went, fortunately, and soon came the Pledge Dance—preceded, of course, by our traditional get-together at the Saddle Club. Despite all predictions to the contrary, Spring arrived, with our slumberless party in the Gym, the carwash to raise scholarship money, and—Joe College! A farewell banquet for the Seniors and we were ready to party it up at the beach. What a year!

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Bob Breen, President

Classes resume with House "C" strong in all phases of campus life—Chapin and Hottle command the NROTC and AFROTC units; 25 brothers on the Dean's List (the academic one); our Y-Men and assistant housemasters who spearheaded a fine rush climaxed by Battelle's bigheartedness at the Phi Club—also known as the Good Will; two team captains and a host of fine athletes. Homecoming was another "spectacular" ignored by the Downtown Merchants Association; the third floor established spring headquarters at Piney Mountain after the General returned from NYC with a truckload of "juice"; Gager's famous and "brief" financial reports; Breen's often-heard "she's working tonight"; Ola's IM teams; Griffin's apartment; Nee's Jag; Hottle replaces Maverick on TV; Buzzard's Atlanta train on Tech weekend; J.B.'s 3-house orgy in Columbia; Yogi's autobiography, I Led Three Lives opens in Chicago; beach weekend; skiing at Reynolds—all went to make '61-'62 a memorable and profitable year for the Taus.

BETA THETA PI

Doug Gill, President

Back for another round of bods and suds at the Rockpile, the brothers of Gamma Rho began the year with a move to Columbia for the USC game. Cabin parties and open houses highlighted the football weekends as Kirby did a great job with no money. Following Losee's first hash, the Betas hit Homecoming with the usual fold job but unbelievably came up with a display only to have it wash away in the rain. Christmas brought the party with the Pi Phi's for the kids from Wright's Refuge with Red Bear playing the role with a white beard. The annual Gross Gift party was a success with many brothers catching lunch. After finals, Geoff and Los calmly brought back the best of the frosh for Turner to work on. Spring brought moves to the Rock, bods on the roof and trips to the beach. Joe College, Wannamaker Ball and Beach Weekend were tremendous, not to mention Spring Vacation in Florida and Nassau. Also among the events to be remembered for the year were the Beta-KA softball game, the Jr.-Sr. football game, low-lai and shreck.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Scott Cherry, President

Descending back to the home of the Rains and of the Country Boy, the Delta Sigs set the tempo for the rest of the year with those fabulous cabin parties. Homecoming was great from start to finish, and AAJ led us to a highly successful social season, especially Shoe & Slipper. Intramurals saw another trophy come our way with a division championship in football. We entered exams still suffering from the shock of being first scholastically and left them thinking there must have been a miscalculation. Rush was one success after another and a good time was had by all. In March came the Pledge Formal followed by the exodus to Lauderdale during Spring Vacation. Joe College served as only a hint to the blast that was had at the Sailors' Ball during Beach Weekend. These were the big things. However, the year will be remembered for other reasons—the Little Grit deserting the South . . . the guiding hand of the Arkansas Statesman . . . the return of the Deacon . . . Fold's award . . . giving up the Goat Barn for the Rec Cabin.

DELTA TAU DELTA

Wendell Hall, President

A social schedule second to none, highlighted by the annual open house for Hanes House, parties with the Tri Delts and Pi Phi's, and the annual Roaring Twenties Party, sustained us through first semester. Football weekends and our intramural football team were part of fall, as were Sunday nights at the Legion Hut, and the IFC Sing where the quartet sounded great, and we came in second. Then the chapter room closed (part of the new approach to scholarship), but that didn't stop late-night television or poker games. The Christmas Dance was the best ever, and the annual exchange of gifts saw some appropriate, but never subtle, presents given among the brothers. The perpetual hinge award passed on to another generation. We sweated finals, and made it, as usual. Rush between semesters wasn't so bad, and we got the best pledge class on campus, naturally. Rush was one big party, but in five days the party was over, and we were going to study. We did, except for things like Belated New Year's Eve party, Queen Dance, and Wannamaker Ball.

KAPPA ALPHA

Alan Purdy, President

As usual the KA's were once again the best organized and the most gentlemanly brotherhood on campus—Dieu et les Dames! Although "Cubbus" and Pridgen have departed, there remain "Isaac Insect" and "Crusader Rabbit" to carry on the fine tradition. "F.R." and Phil, superlative in their last years, have also taken their places among the immortals. In athletics and campus leadership KA was once again at the fore. The Blue Devils of the gridiron and the diamond had many outstanding KA's, among whom were "Goat," "Rhino," "Bulldog," "Bwidges," Markas, and "Joby." "T.T." and Charlie were presidents of their classes. Intramurals were a vital activity this past year, and KA's once again excelled by placing "Honker" and Wickie on the All-IM team. "Biddy" and the Tiki-god leader were busy with community youth work, and Stoutstein kept us within our social budget. "Doc" and "Fly" had great social seasons, each having his turn at the snow machine. Another prosperous year closed with "The Grand Old Gang" on top.

KAPPA SIGMA

Jack Bennett, President

After a much deserved study rest, Kappa Sig returned to the beloved halls of Duke University, again seeking the meaning of life (Duke life, anyway). True to this search, a quad party was held the second Sunday of our return with the Embers performing. During Homecoming Weekend, Kappa Sig's artistic display was a 25-foot operating (?) guillotine which everybody but the judges saw in performance, and which, against the backdrop of black clouds across the moon, proved effective. Even Robespierre would have deemed it authentic. Sometime later, Kappa Sig, innocent victim, was implicated in the Quad Riot in which 32 freshmen, 3 fraternity men, and 2 dogs were either killed or maimed. After this incident the serious members obtained control long enough to convince the fraternity that hard studying and quieter searching for the truth were in order. In view of this decision, a redecoration of the chapter room was started and eventually finished. Beach weekend and finals concluded this year's search for the truth.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

Ron Lee, President

The past year found the brothers of Lambda Chi Alpha actively engaged in a renewed attempt to ruin and improve themselves. The social schedule, ably planned by Brother Chapman, proved to be one of the best in the history of the chapter. Highlighted by cabin parties, a pajama party, pre-game barbecues, and intimate open houses, the fall semester was climaxed when the Lambda Chi Choir bestowed season's blessings upon the Cerebral Palsy Hospital and the Methodist Retirement Home, after which Brother Griffin served his infamous buffet, a la candlelight. The seniors, sparked by a few inspired amateurs, defeated the underclassmen in the annual "Toilet Bowl," a la beer. L'il Abner headed the list of cabin parties, and Joe College found the brothers willing to be corrupted—a swinging time ensued. June arrived far too quickly, and many of the brothers left the verdant pastures of learning and fellowship for the last time, but they left with fond memories of the past and best wishes for the future of Lambda Chi Alpha.

PHI DELTA THETA

C. B. Johnson, President

The azure yacht left port in the fall with coxswain C. B. Johnson at the helm. Many shipboard parties were had, including the gross efforts of John, Prince, & Co. (the "Hot Nuts") complemented by the strenuous efforts of the Embers at the annual Christmas Dance. A goodly number of the crew became stalwarts for the ACC football champs, while the rest of the crew swabbed the league to win the intramural championship. The crew managed to put the ship scholastically ahead of the rest of the fleet while one crewman, Rex Adams, achieved national recognition as a recipient of a coveted Rhodes Scholarship. A storm, apparently directed by an enemy in the guise of a Lamb, damaged the good ship, forcing it into port for repairs. There, taking on 18 fortunate new crew members, the sturdy blue gamely maintained its traditional buoyancy in time of strife. C.B. was then relieved by Kendall at the helm as the ship began its return trip trip, with a brief stop at Myrtle Beach. The homestretch . . . and to moth balls again.

PHI KAPPA PSI

Don Kisslan, President

After many years of hard labor, Phi Psi's ancient problem of how to grow grass on its salt flats has been solved. Under the able leadership of Jim Derby, a flagstone patio has been laid along the front of our humble estate, successfully hiding our horticultural failings, enhancing our appearance and providing a floor on which we have cooked and twisted. The Social Committee, working around the patio and a large budget, managed to organize a memorable set of parties. Homecoming, followed by the "Ship-Wreck" and "Untouchables" parties depleted our number of active brothers (four were drowned in the Eno and seven machine-gunned by Pete Jackson). Rich Bassett won the individual intramural golf trophy, while the Phi Psi squad won the team trophy. Belvin, Drews, and Purnell remained unbeaten in the inter-chapter Box-ball matches. This is true only because they had no opponents; the chapter outlawed the game last fall. As usual, we have remained the hub of campus activities—we have always loved being helpful.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA

Kip Moore, President

Spirits ran high as A. Smith Bowman, Albert Cruikshank, O.M. Boston, and all the boys on the first floor returned to celebrate Phi Kappa Sigma's Silver Anniversary at old D.U. There was Blue Devil Hart's television appearance at the Carolina tilt, F.M. "Weejun" Gold ("Polish me!"), Hood's award-winning mural, Freets and French 2, Scourge's sabbatical at the University of Tehran, Wart carrying on the wonderful Santa Claus tradition, Hoss Man on the G.A.S. ticket, and Monk going 3 for 20 in warm-ups before the Penn State game. The year's headlines might read: "Phi Kap bootleggers moan as campus votes wet; Studley reveals secrets of the Couch Oil Company after dark; Peahead transfers to Florida State; Jimmy "O" buys chapter room tube; the Rilson flash leads gridders to usual sterling intramural record; Hutzler named the ugliest leach around; Stroker and Beans tie for National Safety Council award; Indian rents out Gilbey's Distillery for his wedding reception." Led by Alphas Andy Moore and "Ears" Ervin, Phi Kaps wrote off another unique year in the animal quad.

The Rogue Scholars of Pi Kappa Alpha returned to Duke to enjoy another great year of good times, high spirits, and sober intellectualism. Highlights: Hodgepodge directing another fine Snow Ball . . . Limbo learning the backstroke in Pittsburgh . . . Cec refusing an offer from Fred Waring . . . 44,000 amazed people cheering when Brucie got engaged . . . Schlitz writing term papers months ahead . . . Snowflake Hartman reducing his harem to one . . . "Bring 'em Back Alive" Johnson hunting the Saber-toothed Duck . . . Quilty combining his two favorite pastimes working for the Record Bar . . . The dictatorship of Lyrenski being overthrown by a military coup under the Colonel . . . Powladin selling pretzels to overcome two successive unbalanced budgets . . . Strings moving to G-A for his sixth and seventh years . . . Kennedy deciding which med school to accept . . . Flamingo practicing his high school jargon for the holidays . . . B Nort becoming engaged to the Dream Girl of the South . . . and the departing seniors bringing another year to a close.

PI KAPPA PHI

Mike Witherspoon, President

The Pi Kapps pulled off another spectacular, as fall semester began with "A Roman Holiday." Donned in costumes from slaves to Popes, the Greeks went Roman style for a night. Edgar Allen Poe's "Pit and the Pendulum" was the source of our "Cleave Clemson" theme for Homecoming weekend. It didn't win a prize, but was selected as one of the seven structural wonders of the Greek world. Armed with knives, blackjacks, zip-guns and brass knuckles, and dressed in Carolina football uniforms, the "twisting" Pi Kapps presented a few pre-game calisthenics. However, inebriation of the brotherhood (except our hallowed Pre-Flights) complicated our imitative desires. With Gerry "Bear" Barnett as Santa Claus, the brothers held the annual party for the Edgemont children. Spring semester began with a rush which netted another fine group of Fresh. Other highlights included the annual mass exodus to the beach, cabin parties, and an attempt to reactivate the "15-second club." June brought the completion of another colorful year.

The Ides of March

Dear Mom,

A sad thing happened—I came back to school; I didn't want to start studying so we had a Hometown Beer Party. Unfortunately it was marred when Linsert and Peyton played Tarzan on the high tension wires: the funeral was pretty. Homecoming was pretty too. We didn't like Clemson so we had both our alumni rebuild last year's Ga. Tech display. We didn't win any prizes though. Yes, Mom, I did make the Scream Team. Our aims are to make All-Pro Sudsmen and keep Chief Jackson on the move. At night we play Liar's Dice. So far I've lost only $93 and won $12.50. Sometimes "Rod the Bod" makes book on fights between his Siamese fighting fish, Flash Gordon and Rockey Parrana. But they're fixed—Flash has a high opium content in his blood. We had a Suppressed Desires Party. It was a real horror show. For grins we lynched the scholarship chairman—he was some kind of nut. This year has really been Fat's City.

Love,
Sheldon

Many Sigs were back early — seven for Y-Man duties, Randy to supervise the entire YMCA operation, and Steve to get the S.U. program rolling. Once all the brothers returned, things happened at a rapid rate. "Gunner" set up a social-program which included the usual cabin parties and cookouts, while Carter planned a successful Sweetheart Weekend at Raleigh, where Miss Cyndy Batte was crowned as our new sweetheart. There were also several improvised parties, such as the infamous "Thunderbird Incident." We found time to win the Interfraternity Sing and to build up a substantial lead in the race for the IM High Point Trophy. Following rush, we moved into second semester filled with parties, plus a program aimed at strengthening relations with the administration through open-houses and supper seminars. Wade's social program was augmented by a gala 50th Anniversary Celebration and Beach Weekend. As the year ended with senior speches, the Sigs looked forward to bigger and better things next year.

It was a surprising year for the men who wear the White Star. Newt and Jay presided with a velvet fist, their composure slipping only when both Tate and Massengill came to a meeting. Elton retired his NASCAR winner and Spencer added to his reputation as a BMOC by escorting a bevy of beauties to our parties. Steele became infatuated with Durham's version of "Tokyo Rose" and Cooper finally made a bid. Wheeler become the gem of the Pledge Class when he uttered a sentence which everyone understood. The Munchkin came out when the tube went on, only to discover Porter and Mace were there first. Coane and Beischer staged their version of the Berlin question with the winner getting the trophies. Baxter remained sincere while Todd searched for his missing shirt pockets and Winzeler perfected the Napoleon Twist into a dance instead of a hair-do. Miller boasted Colgate-Palmolive products as King kept the insects at bay. The best frosh found their way to House A, and Beach Weekend was fantastic. The year really swung.

TAU EPSILON PHI

Carl Zielonka, President

The brothers of Tau Epsilon Phi continued again this year in their endeavors to live up to the goals of the fraternity. Socially and academically, TEP's were again among the leaders. Exciting things were happening around the TEP section. Monfs the Clod broke a bone . . . Eagle was grounded—for lack of medical care . . . Sid went north . . . Stu went to lab (CH_3CH_2OH). Nothing kept us from our appointed rounds after every Oak Room meal. Marcia baked us some chocolate (?) goodies and there were more appointed rounds. Intramurally we were in there fighting . . . however, since we were playing basketball at the time. . . . Again the TEP Poker Derby resounded from the halls of Flowers . . . we skewed the tigers . . . sunny Florida beckoned . . . Allen building griped . . . and we dined at Durham's finest culinary establishments (the Dobbs House?). All of these have made this one of TEP's most outstanding years. Delta Upsilon proved again that TEPS ARE TOPS.

From twenty-four states and four foreign countries Theta Chi's converged on Mayola's for the start of another year. Immediately they began preparing for an arduous semester of partying—"anybody know a good crip seven-hour course?" We broke the study routine—"Who has my new Fabian book?"—to win a trophy for our Homecoming Display. S 'n' S found us at the State College chapter celebrating our victory at their expense. Parties, papers, hourlies, and hidden desires. Duke 6, UNC 3, and the desires were no longer hidden. The vegetable patch grew with Cardinal Richardson baptising the converts. Redecoration didn't stop the 2nd floor indoor football league from breaking all existing light glob . . . uh, records. Legal drinking and swinging parties. Bridge suffered—Doc got thirteen hearts, Guy thirteen spades and a new Seven Spade Convention was tried, much to Goren's dismay. The "Sexy Sixties" party prepared us for exams and Rush. Then Joe College and Beach Weekend—you're sunburned where??? Wha'hayell.

ZETA BETA TAU

Gary Salinger, President

1961-1962 marked another outstanding year for the brothers of ZBT. The "great" sophomore class, featuring the Tiger, P. Coast, Rocco, and the Alter, provided the extra spark that made this a truly phenomenal year. ZBT was versatile in their campus functions. We provided a beatnik, a popular singer, and a haven for lost kids. The Ugly Man contest and the unbelievable "Pest" were some of our more notorious contributions. Cars and more cars, bridge and more bridge, and C.S. and more C.S. were season highlights. Once again ZBT's parties were the best on campus. Our combos after football games accompanied with "thy folded again" became common happenings. The year was full of mysteries. Ben arrives, and leaves (with Gilly's car), then Gilly leaves (with half the chapter room), and of course there was the Mystery Man himself. We were kept busy working on our Homecoming display and trying to keep our brothers out of jail. But it was a year like all years, the Old Man constantly aging and Dude steadily rejuvenating. It was full of fun, point-spreads, and especially fraternalism.

SPORTS

THE praises of intercollegiate athletics have surely been sung often enough, yet they may well be repeated. Competitive sport is the figurative hair on the University's chest. The accent is unmistakably masculine. The athletic realm remains the one world where co-eds cannot enter and surpass their male rivals. But the value of athletics would be trivial were its intrinsic worth limited to a reassertion of male supremacy. Among other things, athletics teach that in addition to offering his brain for development, a student has a physical body and emotions lodged therein which must keep abreast of his intellectual progress. As well, a man learns to think under fire when engaged in battle on the gridiron, on the hardwood, on the diamond, in the pool, or wherever. The harvest which the individual participant may reap is impressive: he learns to cooperate with others and to do for the team what he would not do for himself alone.

FOOTBALL

With a light and relatively inexperienced line, Coach Bill Murray's 1961 Blue Devils started off the season with a bang, winning their first three games. It was rougher going, however, when the Dukes faced teams which outweighed them by as much as 25 pounds per man. Still, the Devils came on to drub their final opponents and finish with a 7-3 record, giving Duke a second consecutive A.C.C. Championship. Taking full advantage of the talents of Walt Rappold and Gil Garner, the Duke offense frequently reverted to its accurate passing game. Hauling in the aerials were Swing-Ends Pete Widener, Stan Crisson, and Jay Wilkinson. The latter also raised many an eyebrow with his exciting punt and kick-off returns. Jay came within 10 yards of copping national honors for punt returning.

The 1961 Blue Devils opened the season with a come-from-behind 7-6 victory over the University of South Carolina. U.S.C. scored first with a 26-yard field-goal in the opening period. The determined Gamecocks stymied Duke thrusts on the 16, 2, and 1-yard lines. In the fourth quarter, the Gamecocks increased their lead to 6-0. Finally, the Devil offense slammed into high gear and marched 53 yards to score. Fullback "Red" Burch dove into the end-zone from the 3, with less than two minutes. Billy Reynolds then booted the PAT, to cap a 7-6 Duke victory.

After an uneventful, though well-played first quarter, the Devils romped for 28 points in the second period and glided to an unexpectedly easy 42-0 victory over the Cavaliers of Virginia. The Virginians hold the dubious honor of being the first team to receive a taste of Jay Wilkinson's running ability. The very time Jay handled the ball in varsity play, he streaked 63 yards to convert a Cavalier punt into a Duke score. The Blues had a field day, as they crossed the Virginia goal-line on six different occasions, with six different men doing the honors; Arrington, Wilson, Leggett, Wilkinson, Rappold, and Futrell.

The Blue Devils opened their home season with a 23-3 victory over the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest. The return of an intercepted pass to the Wake 21-yard line in the second quarter set up the first Duke touchdown, a Garner to Futrell aerial. Then Walt Rappold passed to Futrell in the waning minutes of the second period to give Duke a comfortable half-time lead. The teams battled evenly during the third period, although the Devils managed a safety. A few minutes later, Rappold threw to Swing-End Stan Crisson for the final touchdown. Billy Reynolds' third PAT completed the scoring.

Stalemated in the first half, Tech broke loose for 21 points in the final 30 minutes to topple the Devils from the unbeaten ranks. Tech contained the Blues' vaunted passing game as Duke netted but 13 yards in 4 completions. In the first half, Randy Clark kept the Engineers at a safe distance from the Duke goal-line with a 36.7 yard punting average. But Duke crossed the mid-field stripe only twice during the entire game. The Devils took the opening kick-off and moved to the Tech 36; they were on the Engineers' 47 when the first half ended.

An enthusiastic homecoming crowd sat through a long, rainy afternoon to see a determined Clemson aggregation hand the Blue Devils their first loss in Conference play. The Dukes were simply worn down by the heavier Tiger line. The Tigers struck first with a second quarter score, but a Rappold to Leggett pass play put the Devils back in the game at 7-7. Clemson, however, roared back and tallied twice on a 6-inch sneak and a 3-yard field goal, despite stubborn efforts by the Duke goal-line defense. In the final period, Coach Frank Howard's "boys" missed a field-goal attempt and the Devils, led by Gil Garner, marched to the Clemson 15-yard line when the game ended.

The Devils, in State territory again, picked up 3 more points before the end of the half via a 23-yard field-goal by Billy Reynolds. Jay Wilkinson brought the crowd of some 20,000 to its feet with a brash display of his patented punt-returning ability; Jay galloped 82 yards to score. Reynolds converted the PAT. Trailing 21-0 after a lackluster first half, the Blues fielded a "new" team in the third and fourth periods. Completely dominating play, the Devils slashed through the massive Michigan line for scoring drives of 58 and 85 yards. Both touchdowns were sparked by hard-running Fullback "Red" Burch and Dave accounted for 12 points. Another Duke drive carried to the Michigan 5-yard line before it bogged down in the face of a desperate defense. Moreover, a breakaway scoring jaunt by the fleet McRae in the fourth period put the game beyond the reach of the determined Dukes.

Walt then swept 45 yards around his own right end for the second Duke score and Billy Reynolds booted a 21-yard field goal to give the Devils a 16-0 edge. A Bobby Wyatt interception on the Middies' 29-yard line set up the Dukes. Mark Leggett crashed over from the 2. Jack Wilson snatched a stray aerial and raced 56 yards for Duke's final tally.

The defeat was Notre Dame's worst of the season. Halfback Angelo Daberio scampered 54 yards to give the Irish an early lead. Gil Garner scored on a 1-yard sneak for the first Duke tally. The "Rifleman" also accounted for two other six-pointers with passes to Jay Wilkinson and Zo Potts. Walt Rappold tossed to Pete Widener and Stan Crisson for two other scores and Billy Reynolds kicked 4 PAT's and a 31-yard field goal.

Some 40,000 fans held their breath, as with six seconds showing on the clock and the score tied 3-3, Billy Reynolds attempted a field goal. The 39-yard kick was true and it gave the Devils a much-desired, hotly contested victory over the game Tarheels. The winning margin was set up on Dean Wright's interception and a 15-yard penalty against the 'Heels. Perhaps the high-light of the game, prior to Reynolds' historic marker, was the Blues' failure to score on a first and goal situation. The victory gave Duke its second consecutive A.C.C. Championship, and was undoubtedly the most satisfying of all the Dukes' 7 wins.

hort again burned the nets from the outside, sinking six field-goals. In Raleigh, the fired-up Wolfpack grabbed an early lead and held on to defeat the Blues for the second time 71-55. Returning to action against Virginia, Art Heyman scored 25 points and led the Devils to a 101-75 win. Buzzy Harrison, a consistent scorer and play-maker, chalked up 18 points in the triumph over the Cavaliers. In their next game, at College Park, Maryland, the Dukes gained their first victory at Maryland in five years, swamping the Terps 79-53. The Deacons finally turned the trick and downed the Devils in Winston-Salem 97-79. The Devils then picked up two more wins, sinking Navy 91-72 and Virginia

97-71. In the season's finale, The Blues subdued a stubborn Tarheel squad 82-74. Carolina tied the score with 9 minutes to go, but Buzz Mewhort, in a tremendous clutch performance, scored 13 quick points to insure the Duke win. Jeff Mullins led all scorers with 25 and Buzzy Harrison added 16 points. Regular season play in the A.C.C. does not determine the league champion, but only governs the seeding of the A.C.C. Tournament. The Devils drew Maryland as their first-game opponent. The Dukes, sparked by Art Heyman at the free-throw line, downed Maryland 71-58. And then it happened! An inspired Clemson squad, having upset the Wolfpack in their first game, caught fire in the second-half and shocked the Blues 77-72.

Coach Ace Parker has his problems as he begins his 10th season as head man of the Blue Devils. Graduation left many holes in the 1961 line-up which captured the A.C.C. crown, the NCAA District Three Championship, and reached the quarter-finals in the College World Series. Parker admits that "We must almost start from scratch. We have only four men who have seen much action in games." Returning are Lynn Fader at shortstop, Bobby Hawn at second base, and Rex McKinley and Bobby Rankin in the outfield. Larry Harrison, Dick Densmore, and Bob Turner will probably carry the pitching burden, while Ed Chestnutt figures to handle the catching chores. The season opens on March 22 against Dartmouth. Including a Southern tour, the schedule consists of 26 games.

TRACK

Led by Dick Gesswein and Jerry Nourse, the cindermen should pose as a serious threat for several individual A.C.C. laurels, particularly the shotput, hurdles, and distance-running crowns. A member of Duke's cross-country squad, Nourse was the team's number one runner and fared well in the NCAA championships. During the winter-track season, running, on indoor tracks, Jerry really came into his own. During the Millrose Games, Nourse ran the two-mile event in 8:58.3, placing him as the top two-miler in the nation. A week later, Jerry successfully defended his title at the Inquirer games in Philadelphia. Gesswein, the defending A.C.C. Champion in the shotput, is also expected to carry the team in the discus. With a strong squad this year and an impressive freshman team, Coaches Chambers and Buehler can look forward to a bright future.

LACROSSE

Between 1938 and 1955, Duke lacrosse teams were never ranked below seventh in the nation. In recent years, the Devil stickmen have not done quite that well. Nevertheless, the team has been improving each year and should regain its national prestige. Last season, the team won three games, while losing four. This year, Coach Jack Persons looks forward to a better won-lost record, having lost few men through graduation. The team, as usual, faces a formidable schedule, playing Amherst, Brown, Maryland, the University of Massachusetts, Navy, Virginia, and Washington and Lee. And for the first time, the stickmen will play host to the Australian National Lacrosse Team. The annual "Great-Grads" game, when former Duke greats return to play the 1962 squad, promises to be another highlight of the season.

SOCCER

The 1961 Blymen had a fine season, with a 7-3 record. Although the Devils lost a hard-fought contest to Maryland, 2-0, they wound up with a 4-1 record in Atlantic Coast Conference competition to take second place in the standings. Against non-conference foes, Duke trounced Washington and Lee, 11-2, Davidson, 5-1, and Lynchburg, 2-1, while losing to highly-regarded West Chester and Navy by 2-1 and 3-1 scores. The four conference victories were over South Carolina, 5-0, N. C. State, 7-0, Virginia, 3-1, and a satisfying win over the University of North Carolina, 3-2, in the season's finale.

Left Inside Hobie Hyde was the team's leading goal-getter with 10 tallies on the season. He was closely followed by Tony Battelle and Dean Ross with 8 goals each. Terry Hough, Duke's All-American goalie, allowed only 14 goals in 10 games, including two shut-outs. Hough, Ross, Hyde, and Fred Beguin were selected as members of the All Conference and All South teams.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Iron Dukes started off the season with a "bang" by defeating Navy for the first time in competition between the two schools. The thinclads continued with successive victories over North Carolina State, Wake Forest, Maryland, Clemson, Virginia, and South Carolina. The harriers suffered their first and only defeat of the regular season at the hands of the University of North Carolina. Although the team honors went to Carolina, Jerry Nourse, as in the previous meets, finished first to receive the individual laurels. The number two man this year was Dave Blumfeldt. In both the State Cross-Country meet and the A.C.C. meet, Duke finished a close second to Carolina. Nourse finished the season undefeated by placing first in both these meets.

WRESTLING

Plagued with injuries and unable to field its best team in any one match, the wrestling squad went winless. During the season, Duke lost to Davidson, Virginia, North Carolina State, Washington and Lee, and the University of North Carolina. Chuck Grossman and Joe Politi, the victim of a leg injury, are better wrestlers than the team's over-all record would indicate. Next year, these two should team with a fine freshman prospect, heavyweight Walt Moeling, in leading the grapplers to mat wins. The Blue Imps' 4-2 record is another reason for Coach Carmen Falcone to grin and bear it.

SWIMMING

While not very strong, the tankmen nevertheless finished with a 4-5 won-lost record. Among the team's conquests were Clemson, Wake Forest, Virginia, and Davidson. Defeats were met in encountering North Carolina State, the University of North Carolina, Maryland, Navy, and Georgia Tech. Although experiencing a rare losing season, Coach Jack Persons did produce some fine swimmers, notably John Woodworth, the 200-yard backstroke ace, and Jerry Busch, Duke's able free-style artist. Dave Goodner occupied the spotlight throughout the season, leading the team in total points scored. Dave is also the team's hope for the A.C.C. crowns in the 200-yard individual medley and the 100-yard freestyle. Aided by a strong freshman squad, the natators can look forward to a more successful season next year.

TENNIS

The Duke tennis squad, after finishing with a 10-8 record last season, looks for definite improvement this year. The big loss from the 1961 squad is Joe Gaston, the A.C.C. singles champion. But among the lettermen returning to bolster the team are co-captains Hobey Hyde and Clyde Gouldman, Butch Griffin, Alan McIntosh, Barker French, Kurt Steinman, and Richard Helms. Sophomores Jerry Mattson, the number one man on last year's freshman squad, Ken McCullough, and James Cheek will challenge the veterans for playing positions.

GOLF

After posting an excellent 8-0 record in 1961, the 1962 squad set out to match that performance. Coach "Dumpy" Hagler looks to returning lettermen Dick Dion and George Smith to lead this years' squad. Dave Franklin, John Sronce, John Abernathy, Dick Bassett, and Jack Saalfield are expected to round out the squad. The National Intercollegiate Golf Tournament will be held at Duke this year, from June 18-23. This year's squad, despite its tough schedule, might go "all the way."

WOMEM'S INTRAMURALS

Fun and enthusiasm are the rule in the various intramural activities sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association. WAA board members, assisted by the Department of Physical Education, direct the sorority and dormitory tournaments in basketball, volleyball, softball, and bowling. A friendly rivalry marks the two annual swimming meets. The fall semester began with individual competition in tennis and badminton, followed by table tennis. The spring weather attracted many co-eds to participate in the archery tournament. To increase interest in the program, a point system has been devised to record the results. In every game, dorm and sorority spirit runs high.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS

The call of the links. . . .

Intramural athletics serve not only to develop the individual physically, but they also contribute to his mental, moral, and social development. The Duke program seeks to insure this development, as well as to give every student the opportunity to participate in some form of competitive athletics. Directed this year by Senior Manager Rod Franz, the intramural program sponsored competition in such major sports as football, basketball, volleyball, and softball, and held tournaments in such "minor" sports as horseshoes and badminton. Included in the general program is Co-Rec Night, when fraternities are paired with Women's dorms in mixed sports and games.

ADMINISTRATION

WHERE one finds students, one also finds teachers; where there is a faculty there must always be an administration. Supervising and co-ordinating, the administrators of a university perform functions which are sometimes criticized, sometimes applauded, but which are more often unthanked or unnoticed. They legislate, judge, and execute the policies that move Duke closer to its ever-rising standards. But perhaps most important, each member of the administration represents an educated person; he leads, directs, and governs, but he also serves as an inspiration for education.

For fifteen years, one such inspiration has been provided by the gracious personality of Dean of the Woman's College, Miss Roberta Florence Brinkley. Retiring this year to devote herself to research, Dean Brinkley will long be remembered as a person who embodied those qualities which distinguish an administrator—efficiency, leadership, intelligence, curiosity, and an unquenchable love of learning.

The PRES

THE chief aim of Dr. Deryl Hart, President of Duke University, is to lead Duke in becoming the best university possible, by realizing its full potential. Dr. Hart has been associated with Duke University since 1930. Prior to this time, he attended Emory College and Emory University, where he received his B.A. and M.A. degrees. He was awarded the doctoral degree in medicine at Johns Hopkins University and remained there as a surgeon and an instructor until he came to Duke. Dr. Hart served as Chairman of the Department of Surgery at the Duke Medical Center until his appointment as President Pro-Tem in June, 1960. In March of the following year, Dr. Hart's appointment was confirmed and he became President of the University.

Added to his many administrative duties, President Hart is also a Governor of the American College of Surgeons. At present, he is a member of the Council of the Southern Society of Clinical Surgeons and is active in numerous other medical organizations.

Under the presidency of Dr. Hart, the University has pursued a policy directed toward attracting students and faculty of the highest caliber. Able and dedicated, Dr. Hart strives to assure and maintain the aims of the University's founders, in leading Duke along the path of educational excellence.

Mr. Bunyan Snipes Womble, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the University.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The thirty-six member Board of Trustees acts as the legislative branch of Duke University's official government. The Board confirms faculty appointments, regulates the University's rules and by-laws, and approves the issuance of diplomas and honors. Furthermore, the Trustees elect the President of the University and are ultimately responsible for Duke's financial affairs.

The North Carolina Methodist Church and the Duke University Alumni Association appoint the several members of the Board of Trustees, who serve a six-year term. For the second consecutive year, Mr. Bunyan Snipes Womble served as Chairman of the Board. Since the Trustees officially meet only twice annually, matters of immediate consequence are delegated to a seven member Executive Committee.

The General Administration serves as the guiding hand for all activities within the University; it remains the basic unit of co-ordination between Trinity College, the Woman's College, and the College of Engineering, and it supervises the various programs which may lead to a Bachelor of Arts degree, a Bachelor of Sciences degree, and degrees in Civil, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering.

Acting to achieve the long-range plans of the University are many able men. Herbert J. Herring is Vice-President in the Division of Student Life. Having obtained his A.B. degree from Duke, he is especially qualified to cope with questions concerning undergraduate activities. Charles Edward Jordan is Vice-President in the Division of Public Relations. He acts as a supervisor for the Department of Alumni Affairs and is chairman of the University Scholarship Committee. From its headquarters in Allen Building, the Administration truly leads the University. Few need be reminded of the fact that the last few years have seen great changes at Duke. Since 1924 the faculty and Administration of the University have guided the gradual changes which have occurred within the educational and physical structure of what was formerly Trinity College. And because of the efforts of its administrators, Duke will continue to advance.

TRINITY

Trinity College, once an institution in itself, is at the heart and center of Duke University. At the request of James B. Duke, founder of Duke University, the administration of this College was established to assure that "great care and discrimination be exercised in admitting as students only those whose previous records show character, determination, and application evincing a wholesome and real ambition in life."

The present Trinity College includes all male undergraduate students, except those enrolled in the College of Engineering. At the head of Trinity's administrative body is Alan D. Manchester, Dean of Trinity College and Professor of History. He is aided by Assistant Dean Howard A. Strobel, Associate Professor of Chemistry. Dean Strobel's responsibilities lie in general academic counseling and counseling in the Superior Student Program.

Charles B. Johnson, Assistant Professor of Education, serves as Dean of Upperclassmen. Barney L. Jones is Dean of Freshmen and Associate Professor of Religion. Advising the undergraduate on problems outside the academic realm is the admired and respected Dean Robert B. Cox. A new position created this year, Assistant to the Dean of Undergraduate Men, was filled in the fall by C. Howard Womble.

COLLEGE OF

Incorporated as a division of Duke University in 1939, the College of Engineering is one of the fastest growing parts of the University. It now offers a combined Liberal Arts-Engineering Program with nine liberal arts colleges. Last year the College received over $100,000 in government grants for research in six different fields.

Located on West Campus, the Engineering building is fully equipped with modern laboratories, drafting rooms, and an engineering library of some 30,000 volumes. The college itself is divided into the departments of Mechanical, Electrical, and Civil Engineering. Dean Walter J. Seeley, the head of the College, is a past president of the American Society for Engineering Education's southeastern division. Professor John N. Macduff is Chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, while the Department of Electrical Engineering is headed by Dr. Charles R. Vail. Dr. Earl I. Brown is in charge of the Department of Civil Engineering. Mr. Everett B. Weatherspoon is Director of Admissions of the College of Engineering, as well as of Trinity College.

The Dean of the College is assisted by an Executive Committee comprised of the three engineering department chairmen, the Assistant to the Dean, and the Dean of Undergraduate Instruction.

WOMAN'S COLLEGE

There are multiple advantages offered by an education at the Woman's College of Duke University. Because of the position of the Woman's College in Duke, each student has an opportunity to benefit from unique possibilities. She is a part of the larger co-educational university, but she is also a member of a separate college whose deans are all women, devoted to the intellectual and social development of women. By their long hours of concern for and close work with the students, these deans make possible a full and rewarding four years of college life. Whatever her role—as advisor, educator, director, or confidante—each East Campus administrator is well qualified for her position.

Miss Roberta Florence Brinkley, the Dean of the Woman's College, came to the campus after completing undergraduate work at Agnes Scott College and graduate work at George Peabody College for Teachers and at Yale University. After her retire-

Miss Mary Grace Wilson, who is the Dean of Undergraduate Women, co-ordinates the many non-academic affairs of campus life. She was graduated from Winthrop College and completed her graduate work at Columbia University.

A Duke graduate, Miss Lillian Lee is the Assistant Dean of Undergraduate Women. Her office includes advising the treasurers of the Woman's College and handling student employment.

Serving as academic advisor to the Freshman Advisory Council is the Dean of Undergraduate Instruction, Miss Ellen Huckabee. The Associate Dean of Undergraduate Instruction is Miss Marianna Jenkins, advisor to junior and senior women. Miss Jenkins attended Bryn Mawr College and Radcliffe College. During her sabbatical leave first semester, Miss Jane Philpott acted in her stead. Mrs. W. S. Persons, who spent her undergraduate and graduate years at Duke, serves as Director of Admissions.

DEPARTMENT

When not in the classroom, the department head can generally be found sitting behind his office desk. There he conducts the thousand and one items of business that only he can attend to. To say that the department head is the "Father Image" of his department would be an over-simplification. He is in charge of the selection of his staff and of maintaining this staff at the highest possible level. These are tasks which require a personality with the elements of a Machiavelli and a Houdini.

The department head must correlate the needs of his department with the size and type of his staff. He must contact and attract instructors who, by virtue of their backgrounds and education, can make essential contributions to the department and to the students. He unites his staff in furthering the reputation of the department by offering the best possible courses on both the undergraduate and graduate levels.

HEADS

More than this, the department head is obligated to the university to retain his staff and to provide them with opportunities for advancement. As a part of this function, he represents his department to the administration by communicating their interests, needs, and merit. In this way, higher salaries may result and better working conditions may come about. On the other hand, he represents the policies and goals of the university to his staff. The department head becomes, then, the liaison between faculty and administration.

As well as internal affairs, the external relations of a department are greatly influenced by its head. He is an ex-officio member on all the department's committees, and is especially active on the advisory committee for departmental majors. He must, of course, depend to a great extent on the support of his faculty in the formulation of the department's policies and plans.

GRADUATE AND PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS

Graduate and professional schools are as essential to a university as its undergraduate colleges. They afford the student the opportunity to specialize and to concentrate in advanced research in a particular field. In many cases, the graduate student at Duke may further extend himself by assisting a professor in teaching undergraduate classes.

The School of Arts and Sciences is the largest graduate school in the University. Directed by Dean Allan M. Cartter, the twenty-two departments offer a number of programs leading to Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees.

Duke Hospital is the seat of the Medical School, for thirty years the pride of Dr. Davidson, in whose honor the Medical Building was renamed. The Medical School is now under the able direction of Ann M. Jacobansky, R.N., B.S.N.E., M.Ed.

Dean of the School of Nursing

Dr. Barnes Woodhall. Medical students graduate as Masters of Science in Medicine and Medical Technology, or as Doctors of Medicine.

Duke's Divinity School, under the direction of Dean Robert E. Cushman, offers Bachelor of Divinity, Master of Religious Education, and Master of Theology degrees. One of the finest in the country, the School has on its staff representatives of all Protestant denominations.

The relatively small but excellent Duke Law School is administrated by Dean Elvin R. Latty. Degrees offered are Bachelor of Law, Master of Law, and Doctor of Juridical Science. The School of Law has in recent years gained national attention with its establishment of a World Rule of Law Center, headed by Dr. Arthur Larson.

The School of Nursing, under Dean Ann M. Jacobansky, offers work leading to a Master of Science degree. Graduate nursing students gain experience through work at the Duke Hospital and at the Durham Health Department.

The School of Forestry offers Master and Doctor of Forestry degrees. Dean Elwood S. Harrar administrates the school.

The James B. Duke Professorships were created in 1953 through a gift of $12,000,000 from the Duke Endowment Fund. They are named in honor of the University's principal benefactor and founder of the endowment fund. The primary purpose of the professorships is to honor those indivuduals who have excelled in particular fields of scholarship and university life. The University believes that a superior faculty serves to attract and hold superior people, both faculty and students. Consequently, in order to build a greater Duke, no single step is so important as the strengthening of the faculty.

THE JAMES B. DUKE PROFESSORS

Fourteen distinguished professorships composed the original group but, in April of 1961, seven new James B. Duke Professorships were approved. Among those appointed last spring is Dr. Norman F. Conant, who has been recognized for his work in mycology and microbiology. Dr. Clarence Gohdes has served as managing editor and chairman of the editorial board of American Literature.

Dr. Philip Handler has published numerous biochemistry research papers and is well known as the co-author of Principles of Biochemistry, a textbook used in many medical schools. Dr. Charles Roy

THE JAMES B. DUKE PROFESSORS

Hauser holds a Certificate of Merit for his work on the synthesis of anti-malarials during World War II.

Dr. Lanning is a scholar in the area of Latin American history. He has published several books and manuscripts on the early history of the Western Hemisphere. Dr. Karl Milton Wilbur is noted for his research on the biological effects of ultra-violet and X-radiation, and has served as a consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission. Dr. Robert Renbert Wilson has served as an advisor to the State Department and is presently a member of the Board of Editors for the Journal of International Law.

ALUMNI DEPARTMENT

The Duke University Alumni Department, directed by Mr. Charles Dukes, works with over 38,000 alumni in sponsoring class reunions on Homecoming, Founder's Day, Alumni Day, and Commencement. The Department also publishes the Alumni Register ten times annually and the Alumni Newsletter quarterly.

The Department has sought to increase participation in the Loyalty Fund. The 1961-1962 drive encouraged alumni to "Take a Giant Step" and increase contributions, for these funds were matched "dollar for dollar" by a special gift from the Duke Endowment.

By scheduling meetings at events of both intellectual and athletic interest and by keeping alumni posted about happenings at Duke, the Alumni Department has been instrumental in blending faculty, students, and alumni into a harmonious unit.

LIBRARIES

The students and faculty of Duke have access not only to the main libraries on East and West, but also to the specialized libraries of Religion, Law, Medicine, Chemistry, Biology-Forestry, and Mathematics-Physics. Dr. Benjamin E. Powell is in charge of these libraries, manned by a staff of over 100. This store of knowledge, the largest in the South, includes over 1,500,000 volumes, 3,000,000 manuscripts, 6,900 musical scores, 13,600 reels of microfilm, and 35,000 maps.

During the past year, several distinguished collections were acquired. Perhaps foremost among these were the collected writings of John and Charles Wesley, the most significant documents of British Methodism ever to be brought to the United States. The University also obtained a comprehensive collection of writings about Bath, England, and another series dealing with the Isle of Man. A sum of $362,819.00 was allotted for new acquisitions.

CLASSES

NO sooner does each freshman arrive on campus than he finds himself a member of a large, loose body of strangers—the Class of '02, or '35, or '62. Gradually, through courses, fraternal and dorm associations, extra-curriculars, and occasional class gatherings, he begins to feel a vague unity with this group. Some of his colleagues drop out, and new names join the roll. Few know all the members of his class, but the faces become familiar.

Filled calendars are replaced with new ones as college slips by, and suddenly that year arrives. The senior begins to look around at class meetings, when the class gift is being chosen and graduation plans are being made. He notes mentally those he will continue to see after June, and those he may never see again. Soon the class disperses, taking its numerals with it. Each senior has become an alum, a graduate of Dear Old Duke. From now on he will utter with pride, "Class of '62!"

Acknowledgments

It is through the efforts of many concerned and generous people that the 1962 Chanticleer has materialized. We express our indebtedness and sincere thanks to the following persons for their co-operation, patience, and kindness: Miss Doris Leeper and Miss Holly Bivins of Southern Photo Process Engraving Company; Mr. Joe Phelps and Mr. Paul Hoch of Edwards & Broughton Company; Mr. Faye Smith of Smith Studio; Mr. James Kilgore of Kingscraft Covers; and Mr. S. C. Harwood, Financial Advisor.

With great appreciation the Chanticleer acknowledges the following picture credits: Mr. James Churchill; Mr. Thad Sparks; Fred Gerkens of the Duke Chronicle; and Ed Fraser of Peer.

Generous thanks go also to Miss Elsie Shaw for her sketches on the introductory and division pages.
